SUMMARY OF PLAY OF U. S. A. GOLFERS AT SANDWICH TODAY

SECOND ROUND.

Francis Ouimet, Woodland Golf Club, Massachusetts, lost to H. S. Burnell-Tubbs, Littlestone Golf Club, England, two down and one to play.

Frederick Herreshoff, New York, won from J. R. Platt, Royal North Devon Club, England, four up and three to play.

Harold Weber, Toledo, O., won from K. M. Carlisle, Sunningdale, Eng., seven up and six to play.

THIRD ROUND.

Arthur G. Lockwood, Boston, Mass., lost to C. H. Hayward, England, two down and one to play.

Frederick Herreshoff lost to Hon. H. M. Scott, one down.

Charles W. ("Chick") Evans of Chicago, Ill., won from E. W. Scott, three up and two to play.

Harold Weber defeated A. S. Marlott, two up.

By HERBERT TEMPLE.

SANDWICH, England, May 20.—Although Francis Ouimet went down to defeat before the brilliant playing of H. S. Burnell-Tubbs, and Arthur G. Lockwood and Frederick Herreshoff were also defeated today, the Americans still have hopes of winning the British amateur golf title, as Charles ("Chick") Evans of Chicago and Harold Weber of Toledo both won their third round matches in very impressive style.

Evans defeated E. H. W. Scott, 3 up and 2 to play, after the most brilliant playing he has shown since his arrival from America, while Weber ,after defeating K. M. Carlisle, 7 up and 6 to play in the second round, came right back and won another splendid victory over A. S. Marlott by two up.

Tubbs, conqueror of Ouimet, won his way into the fourth round also by easily taking the measure of R. H. Howie, 3 up and 1 to play.

JOHN BALL IS BEATEN.

Excepting the defeat of Ouimet, the great surprise of the day was the beating of John Ball who, with Hilton, was a favorite for the title, by Captain A. V. Hambro at the nineteenth hole. Previously Ball had played a brilliant game and the form he showed going into the third round made the British hopes very rosy. His downfall was the worst setback of the tourney to date for the English.

Francis Ouimet was defeated in the second round by Tubbs of the Little Stone Club, 2 down. The victory of the Britton over Ouimet came as a great surprise.

Arthur G. Lockwood, the first American to reach the third round, went down to defeat at the hands of C. H. Hayward, 3 up and 1 to play. Lockwood played a strong game, but the Briton was at his best and won by consistent playing.

Harold Weber of Toledo earned his way into the third round of play by defeating K. M. Carlisle, 7 up and 6 to play, and Frederick Herreshoff of New York won his way into the third round by winning over J. P. Platt, 4 up and 3 to play.

Charles (Chick) Evans of Chicago continued his fine playing and won his match this morning over E. H. W. Scott.

There was intense interest in the match between Ouimet and Tubbs. Tubbs' victory, however, came as a surprise even to his friends. He won

THEODORE ROOSEVELT AS HE LOOKS TODAY

Colonel Roosevelt is many pounds lighter. His cheeks are thin—compared to his former robust appearance. His hands are almost emaciated. Though tanned by the tropical sun, he is ill and weak and suffered two chills yesterday.

ROOSEVELT TWICE ESCAPES DEATH

By JOHN B. PRATT,

Special Correspondent of the Boston AMERICAN, Who Was Sent to South America to Return with the Roosevelt Party.

OYSTER BAY, May 20.—Colonel Roosevelt today began the ten-day rest he has promised himself before he sails for Spain to attend the wedding of his son, Kermit. He spent the day quietly at home with Mrs. Roosevelt and his family. Over and over again he was required to tell the story of the perils he has undergone in his explorations.

COLONEL'S LIFE DESPAIRED OF.

The full gravity of Colonel Roosevelt's adventures has not been conveyed in dispatches from South America. It was learned today, for instance, that at one time his life was despaired of, and when night fell it was feared he would die of fever before morning.

The Colonel's [illegible] entered their adventures with [illegible] eyes open. Before they started [illegible] wn the River

'I'LL NOT RESIGN'--FITZ

BLOW AT BECKER DEFENCE

NEW YORK, May 20.—A smashing blow was struck today at the defence in the trial of ex-Police Lieutenant Charles Becker when Justice Seabury refused to allow the introduction of an alleged confession made by one of the gunmen, "Dago Frank" Cirofici, just before his execution in Sing Sing, in which he exonerated Becker from all blame for the murder of Herman Rosenthal.

NEW YORK, May 20.—An open clash between ex-Lieutenant Charles A. Becker, who is on trial for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, and Attorney Martin T. Manton, chief counsel for the defence, was threatened today. Becker is insistent that he be allowed to take the stand in his own defence and give the lie to his accusers. Manton is as firmly determined to keep Becker off the stand.

In a talk with his brother, John Becker, the defendant showed his anger over the announcement made yesterday that he would not testify.

"I want to testify," Becker told his brother. "It is always bad for a cop to face a cross-examination because a lot of things he was not really responsible for can be twisted against him. But I want to tell the jury the truth about some rats. I want to tell the jury that I worked hard to keep some people off Rosenthal—warned them I would be blamed if they even slapped Rosenthal's face.

TO OFFER "CONFESSION."

"I can make the jury see I was not big enough damned fool to deliberately get myself in for murder."

Despite Becker's wrath, Manton declared he had no intention of putting Becker on the stand. Chief interest in the trial today centred in efforts that Manton was expected to make to get the alleged "confession" of "Dago Frank," exonerating Becker, before the jury, and the cross-examination of Frederic Hawley, a former newspaper man, who contradicted Jack Rose's story that Becker met Rosenthal's slayers after the murder.

District Attorney Whitman got Hawley "in bad" at the outset by establishing that the witness had given conflicting testimony at the first trial.

"On the last trial," asked Whitman, "you testified that Becker was with you all during the time that he was at the West Forty-seventh street station and that he was not out of your sight for more than five minutes at any time?"

"Yes."

ASKS FOR TRUTH.

"Then I questioned you and you admitted that he was out of your sight for more than half an hour. Which is true?"

"He was out of my sight, but not more than half an hour."

This admission was a sharp blow at the efforts of the defence to set up an alibi for Becker and prove that Rose's testimony that Becker had talked with him after Rosenthal's murder was false.

EX-MAYOR REFUSES APOLOGY

Everybody had something spirited to say today by way of comment on the Curley-Fitzgerald episode at the Chamber of Commerce Gambol last night, when Mayor Curley rose and departed in high dudgeon because Mr. Fitzgerald satirized the Curley administration.

Said the Chamber of Commerce committee on Spring Gambol today: "We're sorry—so sorry. We deeply deplore. We apologize."

Said George S. Smith: "The committee should resign."

Said former Mayor Fitzgerald: "I don't apologize. Certainly not. Mayor Curley didn't have the nerve to take his medicine. That's all."

Said Robert J. Bottomly, secretary of the "Goo Goos": "Mr. Fitzgerald should resign."

Said Mayor Curley to the Chamber of Commerce committee that called on him: "Gentlemen, I hold no resentment—against the Chamber."

Said Bernard J. Rothwell, writing to Mayor Curley: "A wholly unjustifiable affront."

Taking it all in all, there never was a Spring Gambol that created so much talk. Toward the shank of the evening, last night, after most of the stunts were over, the speaking began. Mayor Curley told two stories which former Mayor Fitzgerald says were a very poor form of wit.

AND CURLEY WENT.

Then John Daniels, impersonating Lincoln Steffins, deplored the fact that he had been unable to find any graft in Boston, and said Poston politicians are sad pikers.

Thereupon followed Mr. Fitzgerald, impersonating John A. Sullivan, Sullivan and Curley were once bitter foes. Now they are bosom pals. The Old Revere Sugar Refinery Sold to United Fruit Co.

The Revere Sugar Refinery, probably the oldest sugar refinery in the United States, is to be sold to the United Fruit Company. President William S. Spaulding gives as reasons a price-cutting war, which has forced the company to sell at a loss for the past two years, and the unsettled conditions due to recent changes in the tariff.

The refinery's assets, excepting the real estate and buildings in Cambridge, are to be sold for 1,774 shares of United Fruit stock; and United Fruit is to lease the Revere refinery in Cambridge for $15,000 a year.

The Fruit company will build a new and modern refinery capable of producing 1,000,000 barrels of sugar yearly.

Five Killed When Trolley Hits Auto

CIRCLEVILLE, O., May 20.—William N. Miller, president of the Circleville Bank, his wife and a sister of the banker and two other persons were killed today when an interurban car ran into the automobile driven by Miller at Ashesille, near here. The gasoline tank of the machine instantly exploded, setting fire to the wreckage. One little girl, was taken from the fire badly burned and bruised. It is believed she will die.

Pawtucket Unions Appeal to Governor

PROVIDENCE, May 20.—A committee representing the labor unions of Pawtucket today conferred with Governor Pothier about the charges of discrimination and boycott of union goods in Pawtucket.

The labor officials told the Governor they had brought specific charges before the Mayor and Aldermen of Pawtucket, but had been denied a hearing. The Chief Executive promised to take the matter up with Attorney-General Rice.

MELLEN TELLS HOW COAL MAN GOT AWAY WITH B. & M. PROFITS

WASHINGTON, May 20—Declaring that Billard's profits in the Boston & Maine deal were larger than the New Haven directors anticipated, Mr. Mellen, today before the Interstate Commerce Commission, told of a vote by the directors that Billard should have no profit, "save a reasonable commission."

"But it was too late," said Mr. Mellen, "Billard had got the stuff. My directors sent me in pursuit of a man who had three months start on me. He skipped with two millions, and I was assigned, with a three months' handicap to get back what I could."

WASHINGTON, May 20.—That $300,000 was used to gain the friendship of a powerful daily metropolitan newspaper for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad was the sensational testimony given by Charles S. Mellen, ex-president of the road, before the Interstate Commerce Commission today. He declared that the desire for this friendship prompted the New England Navigation Company, a subsidiary, to lend to W. C. Haskell, editor and proprietor of the Boston Herald, this large sum.

Mellen testified that the loan was made to Haskell about 1907. He said that he had known Haskell many years, and as he was in financial straits he wanted to aid him.

The New Way vs. the Old

Do you look forward with dread to the discomforting and tiring search for another apartment—to walking up one street and down another, looking for a suitable place?

Then banish the thought.

There is a better, surer, more satisfactory way to solve the situation.

All wise, progressive apartment owners and agents list their holdings in the "Apartments" columns of the Boston American.

All you need do is to take a few moments in your easy chair—to glance at that column and take your pick.

Just look—"Apartment, six rooms, light, airy, steam heat and all modern conveniences, tine car service, etc."

Why, you would be almost satisfied to take that place without looking at it. But one look convinces you. One more thankful friend for the American.

If you don't see just the particular thing you had in mind, write a little "ad." of your own. Leave it with any of the American's "Want Ad" Stations, the branch office at 264 Washington Street, main office at 80 Summer Street, or

HUERTA'S FLIGHT ALL PLANNED, BUT ESCORT FINDS HIM TOO DRUNK

MONTEREY, May 19, via Brownsville, Tex., May 20.—General Villa's attack on Saltillo is in full swing today, according to brief messages received by Constitutionalists officers. One of the Federal machine guns has already been captured, together with sixty-eight soldiers and an officer. The Federals have been defeated at Santa Maria and forced to fall back.

By THOMAS P. COATES.
Special Staff Correspondent of the American.

VERA CRUZ, May 20.—Despite President Huerta's declaration in Mexico City that he has no intention of resigning, close observers here have reliable information that the dictatorship is tottering and that his flight from the capital has been arranged for.

Reports that Huerta made arrangements some time ago to take refuge on the French cruiser Condo were confirmed today by refugees from Mexico City. Lieutenant Laporte was sent to the capital to escort the dictator here, but found him roaring drunk. Huerta declared he would not flee despite the advice of his friends. Lieutenant Laporte was disgusted by Huerta's actions and reported to M Lafaivre, the French minister, who told him to return to Vera Cruz.

Advices from Mexico City say that Huerta has decided not to fill the place of Jose Maria Lozano, Minister of Communications. Sir Lionel Carden, British minister at the capital, was in conference with Huerta on Tuesday and an important communication is said to have been sent to Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador at Washington.

BLANQUET MUTINIES.

President Huerta requested General Blanquet, Minister of War, to take command of the Federal troops opposing Villa at Saltillo, but Blanquet refused. Like Huerta, he has been sentenced to death for the murder of Francisco I. Madero.

Dr. Aureliano Urrutia, Huerta's former Minister of the Interior, has been allowed to return from the liner Ypiranga to the Hotel Diligencia, but a strong bodyguard is maintained there to prevent his assassination. Feeling against him has been inflamed by a futile appeal made to him by Senora Hinfron, widow of the deputy who was murdered by agents of Huerta last September. In order to collect $750 insurance on Hindon's life the widow must furnish proof of his death. To get this she begged Urrutia to tell her where the body was buried. He replied that he "could not remember."

A dispatch from Mexico City says that a quantity of arms and ammunition concealed in a plot to overthrow Huerta was seized by secret service officers today. The depot raided was in San Fedro street, but there are believed to be other scattered throughout the city. The officers got seventy-five Winchester rifles and supplies of cartridges as well as many revolvers.

TAMPICO TO BE KEPT AN OPEN PORT; U. S. MAY EVEN USE FORCE

By WILLIAM NELSON TAFT.
Staff Correspondent of the American at the White House.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—"Tampico will be kept an open port regardless of any protest that Huerta may make," said Acting Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt today.

"If any force, Constitutional or Federal should attempt to close it, representations will be made by the United States, and if these fail——"

"By guns?"

"Well, may be?"

This policy was adopted by President Wilson and his advisers at t cabinet meeting last Friday. The facts became public today after an announcement made by Secretary of State Bryan that "Tampico is an open port."

That Huerto will protest against a policy which puts this country in the light of helping the Constitutionalists to obtain war munitions to be used against him is not doubted. That the dictator even may use it as an excuse for withdrawing from the peace conference is regarded as likely. Hence, the query, "How long will the peace conference last?"

The two Mexican gunboats will probably not leave Puerto Mexico. They are being carefully watched by our warships.

CAMBRIDGE MAN ASKS OF RELATIVES' SAFETY IN MEXICO

Washington dispatches today announce that Representative Deitrick has requested the State Department to ascertain the whereabouts of Albert F. Thomas and Mrs. C. J. Woodruff, respectively brother and sister of Horace R. Thomas of Cambridge.

Deitrick's request was made on Horace R. Thomas who said they were last heard of in El Carmen, State of Campeche, Mex. On information that Mrs. Woodruff's husband was connected with a lumber company having headquarters at Davenport, Ia., Mr. Deitrick requested Representative Vollmer also to take up the request.

BULLETINS

EL PASO, May 20.—A big battle is in progress at the front, according to advices over the railroad wire from Mexico. No details are available.

VERA CRUZ, May 20.—Huerta's intimates are convinced that a plot to overthrow him has the sympathy of officers of his army and politicians. The greatest fear in the capital is that the plot may not develop until the Zapata forces enter the city and bring anarchy.

STAGE ALL SET FOR MEDIATION PARLEY AT 3 P. M. TODAY

By LAURENCE TOD.
Special Staff Correspondent of the American.

MEDIATION HEADQUARTERS, Clifton Hotel, Niagara Falls, Ont., May 20.—With the stage set and the actors at hand, letter perfect in their parts, the opening of the drama of the first purely American mediation between governments of two American republics waited today only for the hour of 3 o'clock to act.

Ambassador Da Gama of Brazil, chief of the "A-B-C" envoys, and Minister Naon of Argentina agreed that the outlook for the settlement of the Mexican problem was encouraging. They said they hoped for an early agreement and the prompt acceptance of the views of the conference by the governments involved.

The arrival of Senor Suarez, the Chilian minister, was delayed. Meanwhile the American delegates, Justice Joseph R. Lamar and Frederick Lehmann, rested at their hotel on the American side of the Niagara River.

The Mexican commissioners, Senors Rabasa, Rodriguez and Siqueros, after a conference with their countrymen, including former Charge d'Affaires Algara and Consul Cabo Tomlin of Toronto, declared they "had nothing to say."

Some indication of the probable length of the conference was had from the fact that the Argentinian minister negotiated for a month's lease of a motor car. The interests of the United States are considered furthered by delay. Through all the conferences about headquarters ran one question:

"Will Huerta retire and what will the Mexicans delegates say to the new proposal of the United States that the peons of Mexico be given the land?"

PENROSE WINS; RYAN BEATEN FOR GOVERNOR

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—Today's returns from yesterday's first statewide primaries confirmed the renomination of Boies Penrose for United States Senator by the Republicans and the nomination of Gifford Pinchot and A. Mitchell Palmer by the Washington party (Progressives) and Democrats respectively for United States Senator. The vote cast by the Washington party was surprisingly light.

In the contest for the Democratic nomination for Governor the help of the Washington administration played a great part, and Vance C. McCormick of Harrisburg was nominated over Michael J. Ryan of Philadelphia. Ryan polled a large vote in this city, but McCormick, backed by the Wilson administration, was strong throughout the State.

Martin G. Brumbaugh, superintendent of public schools in Philadelphia, won the Republican nomination for Governor, defeating Joseph Caufiel, Mayor of Johnstown, by a large majority. William Draper Lewis, dean of the law school of the University of Pennsylvania, won the Washington party nomination for Governor running far ahead of Judge Charles N. Brumm of Schuylkill County.

The returns are slowly coming in, but they show a strong Republican vote was polled throughout the State.

Walsh and Council on Training Ship

Governor Walsh and Council inspected the Massachusetts nautical training ship Ranger today. Others in the party were the members of the legislative Committee on Education, Rear Admiral Merry and other members of the Massachusetts Nautical Training School Commission. President John L. Manson of the Boston Marine Society, Chairman Hugh Bancroft of the port directors and Captain DeWitt Coffman of the Navy Yard.

'PRINCESS' WHO SHOT YOUTH IN 'TELL' ACT HELD

"Princess Neta," or Mrs. Juanita Griffin, the full-blooded Comanche sharpshooter, who accidentally shot nineteen-year-old Henry Carvan in a "William Tell" act in Central Square Theatre, Lynn, was held in $500 for a continued hearing tomorrow by Judge Lummus in Lynn District Court today.

The "Princess" pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon. If Carvan dies the charge will be made manslaughter.

The "Princess" could not sleep through the night in her cell, where she was kept for lack of bail. She talked the case over and over again with the matron, saying:

"How awful to have this happen to that boy. I have shot an apple from my husband's head 10,000 times in the last six years. For two years, also, I used to shoot apples from the head of a St. Bernard dog. I never hurt the dog.

"I think Carvan was nervous while waiting for me to shoot. My husband was standing by him. Once he dropped his head forward a bit and I waited. Then he raised his head up again. But I think that, just as I shot, he must have been ill forward a little, which would bring the top of his head more in front."

The wounded boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Garvan of No. 218 Chestnut street, Lynn, are at his bedside. They spent the night there. The mother has uttered no word of complaint against the "Princess," but she did say:

"It's terrible hard that Henry should have to meet death in such a way."

Garvan was an usher. When "Princess Neta" came he agreed to sit with the apple on his head, in the well-known story of "William Tell," with the "Princess" doing the shooting. At the first shot the bullet "mushroomed" on striking the skull and splinters went into the brain.

Siegel Returning on Liner Olympic

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., May 20.—Henry Siegel, the indicted New York merchant, who arrived in England less than a week ago, sailed for New York today on board the liner Olympic.

"Nothing, nothing to say," he cried when reporters attempted to interview him at the pier. During his brief stay in England Siegel was the guest of his married daughter, the Hon. Mrs. Tyree Cavandish.

Court Rules Ships Cannot Be Kept Waiting for Berths

The United States District Court has rendered a decision of the utmost importance to coastwise shipping. In the case of Burton M. Wasson of Calais, Me., against Stetson-Cutler & Co. of Boston, and of Everett W. Leonard of Five Islands, Me., against the William G. Barker Company of Boston, Carver, Wardner, Cavanagh & Walker were the attorneys for the plaintiff and won the decision.

The court defines certain limitations upon the custom of waiting turn for berth. In effect the court holds that a vessel cannot be kept waiting at the wharf indefinitely while vessels ahead in berth are discharged according to the convenience of the consignee, but is entitled to have such vessels as well as herself furnished plenty of space on the wharf to discharge in and given diligent dispatch in unloading.

Further the case decides that a provision for "customary dispatch" in discharging if coupled with a provision that lay days shall commence from the time the vessel reports herself ready to discharge, cannot be construed so as to make the vessel wait her turn at the wharf, in accordance with the custom of the port, but that under such circumstances the vessel must be given a berth when ready, and her cargo then received at the customary rate.

Pevear Will Leaves Fortune to Charity

The will of Henry Pevear of Lynn, filed in Salem Probate Court today, disposes of an estate valude at $850,000 of which $600,000 is in personal property. The following are the important charitable bequests:

Baptist Publication Society of Philadelphia, Massachusetts Baptist Charitable Society, each $2,000; Lynn Y. M. C. A., $3,000; Lynn Home for Young Women, $3,000; Lynn Home for Aged Men, $2,000; Lynn Home for Aged Women, $1,000; Lynn Boys' Club, $2,000; Lynn Woman's Union, $2,000; Boston Baptist Social Union, $2,000, in which he was one of the party, and the Mary Anna Home in Shirley.

High School Girl Saves Youth in River

BRIDGEWATER, May 20.—Miss Katherine Kendall, eighteen, a senior at the Bridgewater High School, saved Sherman McGregory, a class mate, from drowning today when their canoe upset in the Town River. McGregory could not swim. Miss Kendall caught him as he was about to sink the second time and with difficulty reached shore.

RICH BOSTON WIDOW IS TO MARRY COUNT

George Morrill, of New York, came to Boston today to confer with his sister, Mrs. Emmeline Chesver, a wealthy widow, suffrage leader and settlement worker, in the hope of preventing her marriage with Louis Scotti, claimant to an Italian countship, but until recently a hired hand in a Cambridge machine shop.

The proposed marriage has created a sensation in Boston suffrage, society and civic circles and is vigorously opposed by the woman's relatives. Mrs. Chesver is forty-two and Scotti but twenty-five. Scotti has taken out a marriage license and they were to have been married before this, but Mrs. Chesver agreed to wait until after the conference with her brother.

Mrs. Chesver is the widow of the late John B. Chesver, who made a fortune in the wholesale paper and twine business of John S. Chesver and Company, at No. 275 Devonshire street, in which Mrs. Chesver is said to be heavily interested today. She comes from an old aristocratic family and has another brother, Joseph Morrill, who is a Boston attorney.

"ITALIAN OUT OF WORK."

It was he who learned of his sister's intention to wed Scotti through a friend and wired the news to his brother in New York. Joseph Morrill says all he knows about Scotti is that "he is an Italian out of work."

Scotti sang his way into Mrs. Chesver's heart when he appeared at a musicale at the Civic Service House in production of "Pinafore." His rich voice held her enthralled. Since then their friendship has ripened into love, and today Mrs. Chesver declared she would do anything to make him happy.

LIKES FOREIGNERS.

"I think Louie is just a perfect dear," she said. "I love him with an ardor that will never die. He is my ideal of manhood. And, oh, such a beautiful voice!"

"In my plans for marriage I did not think of myself, that is not to the extent that I thought of Louie. My sole aim is to make him happy, for he is such a dear!

"I don't care what my friends or other people may think of the affection that I hold for Louie, for it is none of their business. Aside from Louie's splendid personality, I like him because he is a foreigner.

Speaking of their engagement, Scotti said:

"After Mrs. Chesver heard me sing we became regular sweethearts. We took frequent strolls together; frequently went auto riding through the Fenways, and on other occasions when we did not care for riding or walking or the theatre we would have quiet little dinner parties all by ourselves.

RICH BOSTON WIDOW IS DUE TONIGHT ON MEDFORD LAND

With the Metropolitan Park Commission demanding 600 acres of valuable land along the Mystic River from the town of Medford and Mayor Charles S. Taylor and other citizens opposing the transfer of all this property to the State, it is expected there will be a lively hearing at the Medford city hall tonight, when the Metropolitan Park Commission, the Medford Park Commission and citizens of that city gather to consider the proposed transfer.

The Medford Board of Aldermen has the acceptance of the proposed transfer before them for action. The Medford Board of Trade asked for a hearing before action was taken.

Eighteen years ago this land was purchased by the city with the understanding that it be used for park purposes. Now the land is valuable for commercial development and Mayor Taylor and other citizens are opposed to giving it to the State. They hold that only part of it is needed by the State commission to build a parkway from the centre of Medford to Revers Beach parkway on the Fellaway.

Court Approves B. F. Keith Will

The will of B. F. Keith, founder of the Keith vaudeville circuit, was allowed by Judge Flint in the Dedham Probate Court today. The will disposed of $345,000 in real estate and $255,000 in personal property, of which $500,000 was left to Mr. Keith's widow, Mrs. Ethel Chase Keith. A. Paul Keith, sole executor of the estate, and who succeeds to the head of his father's theatrical interests, has furnished bond for $1,000,000.

PARIS FINDS BOSTON OPERA REMARKABLE, VERDICT OF PRESS

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

PARIS, May 5.—The third week of the Boston Opera season in Paris closes today and finds the company with steadily increasing audiences, and tremendously respected, not only by the American and British residents but by the French press and the Parisian people.

When such great newspapers as the Figaro, the Temps, the Matin, the Journal and others declare that the scenery, chorus singing, ensemble and soloists offered at the Theatre Champs Elysee is a revelation, it means that the Boston Opera Company is not only offering good opera but remarkable opera.

The French press was at first not effusively friendly. The French critics didn't believe that Boston could have a good opera and their idea of the location of Boston, was rather hazy. They dared Henry Russell to interest them in his opera, and he accepted the dare and did interest them.

The triumph came with the "Otello" performance. Urban has prepared for it an entire new suit of scenery, scenery in which his marvelous gift for coloring, his fine sense of history and his original genius had full sway.

Paris had never seen anything like his stage settings, and Paris was amazed and delighted.

Nellie Melba made her first operatic appearance in Paris for ten years. Fontana debuted as Otello, and Marcoux as Iago. Tanlongo was the Cassio, and Elvira Leveroni the Emilia. Moranzoni conducted.

If Melba had been in the condition in which she sang in Boston in March, I am afraid the Boston Opera season in Paris would have received a solar plexus, but Melba was in marvelous form. She seemed ten years younger and her voice certainly a decade more youthful than when she last appeared as Desdemona in Boston. If she had been an unknown artist her performance of the Salce and Ave Marie in the last act would have won the house, but it was Melba, and the French audience went wild.

SURPASSES AS TENOR.

And along with Melba, Ferrari-Fontana triumphed. This superb young tenor has found his best role as the Moor. Nobody had heard such a tenor singing in Paris for many years, and there were critics present who did not hesitate to say that Tamagno, for whom "Otello" was written, never sang as well as this young man who was appearing in the part for the first time.

As Cassio, a part usually handed to worthless second tenors, the Parisians heard Tanlongo, who sang leading roles in Boston, and who made very much of the really beautiful music allotted to Otello's lieutenant. Marcoux as Iago pleased the Parisians and gave a notable performance, but as for me I want an Amato in this part. It calls for much more voice than Marcoux possesses. Leveroni as Emilia pleased the Parisians very much. Leveroni has made a distinct personal hit here. In the solo part of the Madrigal in "Manon Lescaut," she received a veritable ovation, which surprised the modest little North End girl, who declares she never expected to be noticed in that little song.

But it is over the purity, the beauty, the skill and the loveliness of the female chorus that the French critics rave. The superiority of the Boston chorus to that at the Opera or Opera Somique is admitted on all sides.

Madame Melba is one of the best boosters of the Boston girl chorus, and she announced to the press that she was going to give a tea to the Boston girls at which she would serve ice cream soda.

ICE CREAM SODA "TEA."

All the French papers carried accounts of the tea and the girls were filled with anticipation. When the fateful day came Madame Melba was ready and so were all the newspaper photographers but the girls never showed up. An investigation revealed that while all preparations had been made it had been forgotten that said invitations to the girls so none of them came, and Madame Melba was left with fifty or sixty glasses of ice cream soda on her hands in a country where you couldn't pay people to drink ice cream soda.

Melba herself does not care for it, and now she declares that she will never be able to look a soda fountain in the face when she comes to America.

While the Boston Opera Company may be occupying the stage at the Champs Elysee Theatre, there is nothing American about the front of the house. Here everything is in the hands of the French, and the grand old game of hold up is going on just as it does at all the other French theatres. You arrive at the theatre and a man opens your taxi door. Tip. You go to the box office. A man in uniform reaches into the office, takes the ticket from the woman within, gives it to you and holds out his hand. Tip. A very imposing individual approaches you and holds open the inner door for you. Tip.

A most impressive functionary runs you down and flops a program in your face. Innocently you take it. It looks just like the program at the Boston Opera. Fifty centimes if you please, or ten cents American.

You go to the check room. A woman helps you off with your things and gives you a check for same. Tip. You are given your change. You find it costs fifty centimes per article. An old woman looks at your ticket and conducts you to another old woman. Tip. The second O. W. conducts you to a third inside the theatre and deserts you. The third leads you to your seat. Tip. A few minutes later a man comes in and deposits the seat. You find your spaciousness has given you the wrong place. Another old woman leads you to the right one. Tip.

YOU CAN'T ESCAPE.

If you by chance run out of change the attendant impudently offers to change for you. You can't escape.

When Henry Russell took charge of the Champs Elysee he intended to do away with this nuisance, but was shown it couldn't be done, as the attendants would graft anyway no matter what they were paid. But notice this. The front of the house expenses here are nothing at all. All the ushers, door openers and other attendants work for nothing and graft their wages. The cost of printing the program is nothing since the customers pay for it.

I soon found that the Boston Opera in Paris is a much less expensive organization than in Boston. There is the item of the orchestra. In Boston the orchestra costs 4,000 per week. In Paris it costs 2500 francs. It is a wonderfully good orchestra that Russell found ready at hand here. I am not sure that it is not as good as the Boston orchestra. The highest priced man in the orchestra pit gets $23 per week. In the orchestra in Boston there are players who get $125.

Next come the artists. All the artists from Melba down sing for their European prices. Melba who gets $2,500 per night in America, sings for $1,200 here. I am informed, not officially of course, and pays for her own publicity.

The other singers are equally moderate in their demands. The Boston Opera requires about $35,000 per week to operate. I imagine this institution can get by very nicely on $12,000.

The receipts for the "Otello" performance were close to $25,000 francs. If this sort of thing continues the Paris season will show a profit. I think, however, that the "Otelo" receipts are likely to be high water mark.

Robert G. Wood Is Appointed by Glynn

NEW YORK, May 20.—Robert Colgate Wood, Harvard '92, of Riverdale in the Bronx, has been nominated by Governor Glynn and confirmed by the Senate unanimously as Public Service Commissioner of the First District, to succeed Commissioner John E. Eustis. Mr. Wood is a Democrat and a close friend of William C. Osborne, the new Democratic State chairman. He is forty-five years old and has been engaged in banking and brokerage with J. Craig Havemeyer. He is a brother-in-law of Beekman Winthrop, former assistant secretary of the navy.

Improper Clothing Blamed for Disease

Directions for increasing the resisting power of the body were given at Ivans Memorial by Dr. George B. Rice in a lecture on "The Hygiene of the Nose and Throat." He cited testimony from fifty New England physicians showing that such diseases as bronchitis, pneumonia, pleurisy, tuberculosis and jaundice had resulted from the lowering of the resistance of the body by improper clothing.

Henry C. Frick Is Golfing in Paris

PARIS, May 20.—Henry C. Frick, the American coke and steel magnate, is taking a strenuous holiday here. He rises early every morning and goes to the golf links, where he remains all day.

A Trip to California Has Been Placed Within Your Reach

Why not make a reservation on one of the Burlington-Rock Island "Personally Conducted Parties to California"? If you would like to make this trip under unusually attractive conditions and at an especially low cost, I would like to hear from you right away.

You can travel with a select party and with all the comforts of a Pullman Tourist Sleeping Car throughout—and at minimum cost.

A carefully trained man will accompany the party all the way. You will find him to be thoroughly convenient, good-natured and kindly, as he has been especially selected because of his knack for making people comfortable, as well as because of his ability to look after baggage, tickets, etc. Let me tell you more about this trip and something that you will like. Just call or write and I will gladly explain all the details.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively on the liver, stimulating them to natural action, cleansing the blood and gently purifying the entire system.

They do the work of calomel without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of pills, purgatives, grip, salts or calomel are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or disagreeable effects of any kind.

Dr. F. M. Edwards, discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaints with the attendant bad breath.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 10c and 25c per box. The Dr. Edwards Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O. All druggists.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Curley Issues Order for Playgrounds

Orders to complete the playgrounds at Rutherford avenue, Charlestown, and at Orient Heights have been issued by Mayor Curley. He later asserted, however, that he might advocate the sale of both these playgrounds, because the Rutherford avenue place was too small for a game of baseball, while the other was "all right only at low tide."

Moving Day Waits Approval of Curley

Moving-day for the numerous city departments which are to occupy the City Hall annex only awaits the approval of Mayor Curley to the contract submitted by C. Bowen, who in the re-advertised bids, names $3,899 as the approximate price. The Public Works Department recommends that Bowen be given the contract.

Boston's Greatest Sale of Fine Spring and Summer Shoes STARTS TOMORROW MORNING LESS THAN WHOLESALE PRICES

Every year at this time I plan to hold an enormous sale to open the Summer season. For many weeks past I have been in communication with large manufacturers all over the country urging them to quote me special rates that I could put in this sale at the lowest prices ever seen in New England for shoes of high grade. On the strength of my big buying most of these factories have responded generously, and as a result I defy any other shoe store or shoe department to even approach my prices. In the past I have given you wonderful values that have made this the most popular shoe store in New England. In this sale I eclipse even my own previous remarkable values, and I offer ex-Mayor's speech was a satirical attack on the Curley administration. It was carefully prepared. As it reached its height Mayor Curley whispered to James A. McKibben, secretary of the Chamber:

"I'm going, Jim."

And he went, nor stood long on the order of his going.

Thereafter pandemonium broke loose in the banquet hall. Joseph J. Randolph Coolidge, president of the Chamber, expressed regret for the incident.

Bernard J. Rothwell, a former president, rose to offer a resolution of apology to the Mayor and condemnation of Mr. Fitzgerald, but President Coolidge declared the incident "closed."

Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald was asked today whether he would resign or apologize to Mayor Curley. He replied:

"Resign? Bosh! That's Bottomly and the Goo Goos. Certainly shall not resign, nor will I apologize.

"Mayor Curley hasn't got his nerve with him. That's all. The whole thing was meant in a joking way. He's a brave man—maybe he should have smiled and laughed it off. I've been in worse situations a hundred times, but I sat and took my medicine.

MUST STAND "GRINDS."

"Is there any sense of humor left in Mayor Curley's composition? Everybody who knows anything at all about gatherings of the nature held last night accepts the fact that everything goes." The man who gets mad and loses his temper at the pleasantries of any of the speakers, even if they are of the nature of a roast on himself or his friends, simply writes himself down as incapable of grasping the spirit of the occasion.

"Look at the programs that are carried out every year by the Gridiron Club in Washington, where the hottest kind of roasts are handed out by the promoters of the affair to everybody, even to men as exalted as the President of the United States and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. Yet everybody takes everything in good part, and nobody laughs more heartily at the grinds than the distinguished gentlemen on high up in the service of the nation against whom the shafts are directed.

"Again, here in our own city, look at the proceedings of our Clover Club, carried on here for years in perfect good humor and thorough appreciation. Why the Waste Basket Editor of the Clover Club roasts everybody without mercy, and yet no man is so small as not to join as loud as anybody else in the laughter which the thrusts at him produce.

CURLEY AND THE G. A. R.

"But as Mayor Curley insists on taking himself and everybody else so seriously it may be as well to take him a little bit seriously, too.

"In his speech the Mayor told two stories on which I invite the attention of two very important elements in our community, and let them judge as to the good faith of the remarks.

"The Mayor told astory of how in his campaign for Mayor he was twitted on by a fellow, who said he was down and out, out of a job, and wanted him to do something for him, and that he was a friend of Mr. Curley.

"The Mayor, in his speech last night said that he told the man:

"'All right, here's a couple of dollars. Do this stunt for me tonight on the platform. I want you to be a Grand Army man, and make a speech indorsing my candidacy, tell how I was a friend of the soldiers and then present me with this cane in behalf of the veterans of the Union.'

"The Mayor told his hearers that this fellow did carry out his orders and actually appeared on the platform in one night, made his speech as a Grand Army man, thanked Mr. Curley for his efforts on behalf of the soldiers and presented him with a cane.

SOME OF CURLEY'S WIT.

"Then Mayor Curley capped the climax of his interesting disclosure, so full of interest to the Grand Army men of this State and city, by informing his Chamber of Commerce listeners, amid loud laughter, that the fellow who gave him the cane was a Confederate veteran and fought under Lee.

"Again, look at the nice, delicate, complimentary things Mayor Curley said last night when describing his experiences at a meeting of his Neponset supporters held during the city campaign.

"Mayor Curley told how he went out there, into the Neponset district, to attend a meeting presided over by a man who, the Mayor said, had been a candidate for sheriff and who had been licked in every precinct.

"Curley said he was presented to that meeting, in an atmosphere heavily laden with the fumes of liquor, which he endured for the three hours that he was on the platform.

"That was a nice way for the Mayor of Boston to describe the meeting of his supporters, presided over by a man whom he has since appointed as sinking fund commissioner.

"I need make no further comment on the Mayor's peculiar conduct of last night. Of course, it gave a great opportunity to Mr. Rothwell, Mr. Billings and one or two others of my arch-enemies to make a demonstration hostile to me.

"I simply went to that meeting at the urgent request of the committee, made to me there a week ago. They said that the thing was falling flat and that they wanted somebody who would put vim and go into the night. I told the committee I was perfectly willing to help them out, and asked them what they wanted me to do. They said they would like to have me impersonate Mayor Curley. This I flatly refused to do, but the committee insisted and would not take 'no' for an answer, and so, instead of doing as they asked me and impersonating the Mayor, I devoted my speech to John A. Sullivan.

SHOULD QUIT PUBLIC LIFE.

"Now, all I have to say is this: If people are so terribly thin-skinned as not to know how to take a joke or a roast, as men far bigger than we are do while perfect good nature at the gatherings of the Washington Gridiron Club or the Boston Clover Club, then they are not fitted to stay out of public life altogether."

Bernard J. Rothwell, a former president of the Chamber, said today in comment on the affair:

"I believe I express the sentiments of the serious minded men of the Chamber when I say I deplore the attack on the Mayor at the banquet last night. I am not a Fitzgerald man or a Curley man myself, but Mayor Curley was our guest, sitting at our table, and we allowed a thinly veiled personal attack to be made upon him by his predecessor in office and political enemy. The whole thing was most unfortunate and in bad taste. Even among savages a guest is respected.

"To express my personal feelings, I have sent the following letter to the Mayor:

ROTHWELL TO MAYOR.

Honorable James M. Curley,
Mayor's Office, Boston, Mass.

My Dear Sir:

I trust that you will realize that the rank and file of the membership of the Chamber of Commerce most strongly deplore and condemn the wholly unjustifiable affront to which you were subjected last evening.

You are the guest of the Chamber of Commerce in its temporary home, and as such are entitled to that full protection with which every gentleman surrounds the guests within his walls.

Under the immediate circumstances, you adopted the only alternative which self-respect permitted. The self-preservation is the first law of nature and I'm going to deliver Becker." I said to Bob: "You dirty skunk, you can't get me to go! I will tell all." Then Rose chimed in and said: "Jack, if you will corroborate us we will get out tomorrow." I turned on him saying, "Why, you bald headed ——, why don't you go and punch your brains out in your cell? You're the dirtiest cur I ever knew."

"Another time Rose said to me: 'You saw Becker go up and say you saw us talking to Becker.' Then I said: 'you bald headed—— I won't swear to anything I didn't see. I would rather rot in jail first."

"The Katzenjammer Kids" will be back again next Sunday in the Comic Section of the Sunday AMERICAN, Hans and Fritz, der Captain, Mrs. Katzenjammer and the Professor are funnier than ever. Order next Sunday's AMERICAN now.

ADMITS PHONE CALLS TO PROVE BECKER ALIBI

van, king of the newsboys, was the first witness called for the defence. He gave practically the same testimony he gave at Becker's first trial.

WAS WITH BECKER.

Sullivan said he was with Becker on the night Rosenthal was killed and gave an account of their where abouts.

Reich said he left Becker between 1:30 and 2 o'clock on the morning of July 16 (1912), walking down Broadway. At a confectionery store just below Forty-third street he stepped in to get a glass of soda water.

"While in the store," said the witness, "I heard shots. I ran up to the corner of Forty-third street and saw Herman Rosenthal, a man I had known for twenty-five years, lying on the pavement. I bent over him and said: 'Herman, what's the matter?' He answer me.' Then I went into the Cadillac and called up a newspaper on the telephone, after which I went around to Bridgie Webber's. I saw Rose, Vallon, Webber, Schepps and a crowd of fellows in a cigar store on Forty-third. I stopped in to ask what happened.

"Bridgie" clinched me on the cheek and said: 'Jack, this is the happiest moment of my life. I can go home and see my wife now without any fear. You know that Rosenthal was going to have me croaked, but I thank God he got it first.'"

Reich said he didn't see Becker again Thursday, but he did hear talk of a previous occasion when Rose secured a loan of $250 from Webber.

WEBBER WAS SORE.

"When Webber and I went away in a taxicab, Webber was sore," said Reich. "He turned to me and said: 'I would like to get rid of that bald-headed —— Rose. He and Vallon and Schepps are bleeding me to death.'"

Reich, upon whom the defense is pinning its strongest hopes, told of a conversation he had with Rose in the Tombs.

"Rose asked me what I was doing there," said Reich. "Then he went on: 'Its Becker that Whitman wants and I am going to see that he gets him.'"

"Did you talk with Webber while you were in the Tombs?" Rose again asked Manton.

"Yes. Webber said to me, 'Jack, Whitman wants Becker and if we won't deliver him we will lose our lives. Self-preservation is the first law of nature and I'm going to deliver Becker.' I said to Bob: 'You dirty skunk, you can't get me to go! I will tell all.' Then Rose chimed in and said: 'Jack, if you will corroborate us we will get out tomorrow.' I turned on him saying, 'Why, you bald headed —— why don't you go and punch your brains out in your cell? You're the dirtiest cur I ever knew.'

"Another time Rose said to me: 'You saw Becker go up and say you saw us talking to Becker.' Then I said: 'you bald headed—— I won't swear to anything I didn't see. I would rather rot in jail first."

Suffragette Fire Near King and Queen

ALDERSHOT, England, May 20.—Investigation of a fire that broke out last night in the forest near the royal pavilion, where King George and Queen Mary had been staying during the maneuvres here, has convinced the police that it was set by suffragettes. The flames were extinguished by soldiers.

Rheumasalts Is Fine For Torpid Liver

Learn How to Secure Quick, Safe Relief.

The liver is the largest gland in the body, weighing nearly four pounds. Its main purpose is to aid digestion and make glycogen for the blood. So it is important to keep it working right.

If your liver is lazy and your kidneys thereby with a dull ache, you need the scientifically blended and chemically pure carbonated lithia drink called Rheumasalts.

Lame back, shooting pains, tired feeling, dizziness and nervousness simply mean that your liver and kidneys are clogged with impurities, and that poisonous uric acid is circulating their way and upsetting the digestive functions and filtering the blood. Flush your liver and kidneys and set them working right by taking Rheumasalts in water for a few mornings.

Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness and blood disorders come from torpid liver and sluggish kidneys. Take Rheumasalts. This delightful effervescent lithia drink helps the deranged kidneys and cleans out the stomach, and eliminates toxins and poisons, and leaves the intestinal canal clean and sweet.

Lithia acts as solvent on uric acid, while uric acid solvent as well as a saline laxative. Acts quickly without griping or nausea.

The next time your liver and kidneys bother you or your back aches, ask your druggist for a bottle of Rheumasalts. It comes in 25c, 50c and $1.00 bottles. If he hasn't the genuine Rheumasalts send the price to the Rheumasalts Company, Dept. 140, Minneapolis, Minn., for a bottle.

Sold by Eliot-Jarvis and Kent drug stores.

Absorbs Skin, Chases Wrinkles-Young Again

"The shock at beholding myself in the glass after only a few weeks aboi nearly caused a relapse," writes Miss Nellie Nelson in Home Queen. "The faded face, with its lines of illness and worry, seemed twenty years older. Now, I thought, I could not attend my friend's wedding, eleven days off, to which I had looked hopefully forward.

"She herself came to my rescue. She procured an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax like cold cream, washing it off next morning. Applied nightly, this apparently absorbed the withered skin, so gently I experienced no discomfort. Upon the wedding morn the pallid complexion had entirely given way to one of youthful color and loveliness.

"And there wasn't a wrinkle. This due to a wash lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. The dull face took had disposed every line."

ROOSEVELT'S LIFE WAS TWICE DESPAIRED OF IN BRAZIL'S JUNGLE

Duvida, they were warned that the sixty-day trip was something never before attempted. The Colonel clicked his teeth and said: "Well try it, anyhow"—and they set forth.

On April 26 Colonel Roosevelt arrived at the climax of his adventures.

For days the party had been on half rations. Much food had been lost when canoes upset in the rapids. They had failed to bag any game. They were reduced to five crackers each a day—two at breakfast, one at lunch and two at supper, along with a mere snack of "emergency rations," a mixture of dry vegetables in tins. The party had, for a week, been able to make only three or four miles a day.

DOWN WITH FEVER.

Colonel Roosevelt had felt the strain for some time. On April 24 the fever came upon him. He was scarcely able to walk. He would go along for 100 feet and fall over, rise and stagger on. The former President passed the night of April 26 on a stretcher in delirium. Kermit sat up all night applying wet cloths to his father's head; Dr. Cajaiera administered medicines.

At daybreak the fever was still intense, but the ex-President had come out of delirium. He insisted, against the advice of Dr. Cajaiera, to go ahead.

"We can't stop now," said Roosevelt, raising himself from his cot. "If we don't go on, we'll all die here.

Roosevelt would allow no one to help him but staggered on. When the party halted he lay on the ground his heart greatly accelerated. That day and the next the Colonel suffered torture. On the third day Kermit asked him to stop until the fever abated, urging that the party did not want to go on until he was better.

REFUSED TO STOP.

"I can't to it," insisted Colonel Roosevelt, gritting his teeth. "I will go as far as I can. When I am unable to proceed further, I'll stay right here and fight it out alone.

I've the shortest span of life ahead of any in the party," he insisted, patday Kermit's shoulder affectionately. "If any one is to die here it will be the one. The others must look out for themselves. You are all strong and can make it."

Colonel Roosevelt would not let the party stop. The stolorers gathered their way along until dusk. Then they camped at the water's edge. That night Roosevelt's fever went over 105. As Dr. Cajaiera bent over him the ex-President murmured:

"This looks like the last for me, doctor. If I'm to go, it's all right. I'm see that the others don't stop for me."

It was a gloomy party that night. No one slept a wink. Toward dawn Dr. Cajaiera announced that the fever was abating and the ex-President was past the crisis.

"I knew I'd make it," said the colonel with a grin, as the party started out.

While the fever raged, festers broke out over the colonel. His legs were badly attacked. Each day Dr. Cajaiera lanced them.

Not only did Roosevelt almost die of fever, but he came within an ace of losing his life when his canoe upset. This happened two weeks before the fever.

The ex-President, with five paddlers, was running along close to the bank of the wide river, when a canoe coming behind him got into the swirl of the rapids.

Roosevelt leaped out of his own craft and tried to seize the runaway. He plunged through the rushing waters—nearly five feet deep at that point—and grabbed the end of the canoe as it sped past. The ex-President lost his footing and was thrown violently against projecting rocks. His right leg was cut to the bone.

The Colonel swam to the bank, and Dr. Cajaiera cauterized the wound and bandaged it. In a few days the wound began to fester, and the expedition had to hault while the Brazilian doctor pierced it. After the operation, as Colonel Roosevelt lay in the terrific August heat, the size and temper of hornets, buzzed around and bit him.

"It took all my patience to stand the peppery bombardment of those pesky critter," said the Colonel in telling of it. "They know how to bite."

The canoe that the Colonel tried to save was rescued before it reached the waterfalls by the Colonel's paddlers.

OVER A CATARACT.

Kermit had a thrilling experience soon after this, when his canoe dashed over a cataract. Just before the plunge Kermit leaped out and caught an overhanging branch near the middle of the surging stream. By a plucky effort he swam to shore, while the Brazilian paddlers watched in open-eyed wonder. The paddlers worked their way out after the canoe shot the rapids.

When the ex-President and his party embarked on the Rio Duvida they had what they considered a terrible experiment. At the end of the trip every scrap of food was gone, ammunition had run out and their clothes were in tatters.

The Amazonian mob much of the canned food and devoured it. This became known after one of them, a truculent, dragging fellow, in sullen spirit, disheartened over the plight of the expedition, drew a dagger and killed a comrade.

The murderer, with a savage cry dashed off into the wilderness, to die alone. The victim of his sudden outburst was buried by Colonel Roosevelt and his confreres alongside the Duvida. A rude cross was placed over the grave with his name carved on it.

At the crisis in their fortunes the adventurers found a food supply in the leaves of the palmito, or palm, growing abundantly in the jungle. They chopped the palm down and took from the top a green, tight cluster of leaves, resembling the corrugated cone of a pine tree. These leaves raw would cause digestional distress, so they boiled them, serving with salt, they tasted much like cabbage and were nutritious. But

Couple Jailed for Row Over Mexico

It doesn't pay to get too excited about the "war." Argument over the trouble in Mexico led to domestic warfare in the home of Joseph Yoko, a Japanese, according to the police, and Yoko and his wife, Josephine, an American woman, were haled into the South Boston court today on a charge of fighting. The police said he had taken the side of Mexico while his wife stood up for Uncle Sam in their argument. Judge Fallon sentenced each to a month in the House of Correction.

to stop to gather the palmito took two or three hours, and with the slow progress now being made because of the incessant waterfalls time was precious.

While the explorers were half famished and their predicament was critical, Colonel Roosevelt, sitting in camp at night, would take keen delight in taunting Kermit with visions of a tempting feast. Kermit, like his father, has a voracious appetite, and the two did all they could to allay the sting of gnawing hunger. After the crackers and "emergency rations" had been disposed of each fires lighted to keep off the mosquitoes that infest the jungle, the ex-President one night exclaimed, glancing at Kermit:

"Ah," smacking his lips, "I am thinking of a tender, juicy beefsteak —and lots of it—with fried potatoes and trimmings. Enough for everybody, heaps of it to eat, too."

And Kermit got up, and, in imploring tone, begged:

"Aw, father, please cut it out."

MADE "DUGOUTS."

Whenever a canoe "went wrong," another had to be made, and this took an entire day. The canoes were chopped out of huge trees. "Dugouts" they were called.

One day, when the rations were at lowest ebb, Cherrie, with his rifle, went far into the jungle looking for game. Discouraged at finding none, he sat under a palm tree to rest, when suddenly he heard a chattering and, looking up, saw a monkey hanging by its tail. Cherrie popped off the monkey. On his way back to camp he bagged another hapless one. That night, for supper, the Colonel and his confreres ate monkey for the first time in their lives.

"Right there in the jungle, hungry as we were, he monkey tasted fine," said the Colonel later. "But I can't say I'd crave it at home."

On April 28 the Colonel's party, nearly famished, came in sight of a steamer on the lower Duvida. By this time the food supply was gone. The steamer turned out to be the City of Manaos, a Brazilian gunboat —without any guns. It had been sent out from Manaos to see if it could find the Colonel's party.

Roosevelt, weak and ill, was half carried aboard the Manaos. The ordeal was over.

ROOSEVELT IS WELCOMED BY HIS SERVANTS

OYSTER BAY, May 20. — The Colonel has come home. When his rowboat, with two boatmen and his son, Archie, beside himself in it, brought them from the tug on which they had come from New York, thirty men and women were waiting with a welcome. They included neighbors, servants and reporters.

As the Colonel stepped from the rowboat the eager footman, who was holding his hat in one hand and a lantern in the other and at the same time trying to assist the Colonel, let on the hat.

"Easy, Mike, easy," cried Roosevelt, who fished the hat from the water with his cane. "Don't get excited."

A heavy flashlight was exploded by the photographers and a baby held by its mother began to cry.

"Bless his heart," cried the Colonel, as he pinched the youngster's cheek. "He's doing just what I feel like doing. By George, it is good to be back here."

Limping up the gangplank the Colonel was first welcomed by his daughter Ethel and her husband, Dr. Richard Derby. Mrs. Derby wept as she put her arms about his neck and kissed him.

GREETS SERVANTS.

"I'm so glad to be back," he said, shaking the hands of his servants.

"Ah, here is Christine," he cried grasping the hands of a white-haired woman who has been employed by the family for years. "My dear Christine," he said, and bent over and kissed her hand, which she yielded to him with a courtly air.

"Why, darling," he said to another white-haired woman, "it's a joy to see you." He imprinted a kiss on her hand. "The joy of coming back is in seeing you all well."

To inquiries as to his health, he said: "I'm better already. I'm the same old T. R."

"STILL HAS THE BIG STICK."

"They need you in Washington, Colonel," said a workman, who had put on his Sunday suit to greet his master.

The Colonel smilingly lifted his cane and said:

"Well, I still have the "big stick." The old servants were weeping for joy as the Colonel was assisted into the automobile of Dr. Derby and started for Sagamore Hill.

SAYS SULPHUR IS SURE TO RELIEVE ITCHING ECZEMA

Get an Ounce of Bold-Sulphur Cream and Heal Skin Eruptions Right Up.

Any breaking out or irritation on the face, arms, legs or body, when accompanied by itching, or can be readily overcome by applying a little bold-sulphur cream, says a noted dermatologist.

He says that bold-sulphur instantly allays the angry itching and irritation, and soothes and heals the Eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position for many years in the treatment of cutaneous disorders because of its parasite-destroying property. Nothing has ever been found to take its place in treating the irritable and inflammatory skin affections. While not always establishing a permanent cure, it never fails to subdue the itching irritation and drive the Eczema away, and if used before any eruption again appears on the skin.

Those troubled should obtain at any pharmacy an ounce of bold-sulphur cream, which is applied to the affected parts in the same manner as an ordinary cold cream. It isn't unpleasant, and the prompt relief afforded, particularly in itching Eczema, proves very welcome.

BERNARD SHAW WON BY WIFE TO VISIT BOSTON

George Bernard Shaw, the Irish dramatist and satirist on all things British, is to come to Boston to see the city which pleased his wife so greatly.

Shaw vowed he never would come to the United States, but Mrs. Shaw, according to today's cables from London, has won him over.

Mrs. Shaw was here on a few weeks' visit to Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Morgan of the Hotel Tudor, corner of Beacon and Joy streets.

Mrs. Shaw was accompanied here by Lena Ashwell, the English actress. The dramatist's wife was keenly interested in the American production of "Fanny's First Play," which was given in this city.

On May 9 Mrs. Shaw sailed for home on the Olympic. Now comes the news that, not only will she return here in the Fall, but she will bring her keen-witted husband with her.

An American Talk to Its Readers

Why Americans Are the Best Dressed Men in the World

¶ In every foreign city the people who live there can pick an American from a crowd of men from every nation on the face of the globe—not because his facial appearance or general bearing is so much different—but simply because his clothes are so superior in fabric and tailoring that they lend positive distinctiveness to his personality.

¶ And here's the simple reason why this is so. American manufacturers idealize their product by advertising it—by showing handsome pictures of it, and then making the product live up to the pictures.

¶ Today the clothing and haberdashery advertising in the American is one of its most attractive and instructive features.

¶ With unfailing fidelity it records current fashions for men—keeps them informed regarding all innovations, whether the new styles relate to business suits, walking suits, dinner suits, evening suits, recreation suits, top coats, hats, neckwear, shirts, or the latest whim in collars.

¶ This news of men's fashions—illustrated and described by Boston's progressive clothiers, tailors and the leading clothing manufacturers of the country—is authoritative in the strictest sense of that severe word.

¶ If you want to know—all the time—what you should wear in the way of clothing and haberdashery, read the advertising of men's clothing and men's furnishings in the American carefully and continuously.

¶ Not only will you be correctly informed, but you will learn, at various times throughout the year, of many positive money-saving opportunities. In fact, there is hardly a week during which apparel, dependable in style as well as quality, cannot be purchased below regular price.

¶ These advantages are harvested by those who keep in close touch with the clothing advertising in the columns of the American.

CHARGE REAL SLAYER OF ANNIE MULLINS IS STILL AT LARGE

Counsel for James Mantir and Peter C. Delorey said today their petitions for the pardon of the boys, in State Prison for the murder of Annie Mullins, will not be ready to be presented to Governor Walsh until the latter part of the week. They wish to perfect important details.

Attorney John A. E. Moroney of Boston, counsel for Mantir, and Attorney Frank McDermott of Cambridge, counsel for Delorey, are confident they will free their clients. They have marshalled a lot of convincing evidence which they will keep secret until the pardon hearing, and they have enlisted influential witnesses. Surprises are in store. Both agree with Captain Hurley and Inspector Nielan of the Cambridge police that the slayer of Annie Mullins is still at large.

Attorney McDermott today made public for the first time inside details about the so-called confession of Delorey which he claimed was forced into Delorey's mouth. He also confirmed the report that, if Delorey had consented to turn State's evidence and stand by this confession at the trial, he would have been placed on probation, but he declined because he said his statements to the police were not true and that he would not abandon Mantir and blame him for something he did not do.

IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS.

Here is Attorney McDermott's statement:

"There are important developments which we cannot make public at this time. The outlook is most encouraging. We are going to free Mantir and Delorey. Justice and humanity demand such action. Why should innocent young men, mere boys, be kept behind prison bars for something they didn't do—Mantir for life and my client for eighteen years? It is a terrible situation.

"The man who killed Annie Mullins is the man who called at the home of Professor von Jagerman that Good Friday evening. Everything points to him and he is still at large, while two innocent boys are suffering for his act.

"Do you think for one minute that I would carry this burden for years and spend money out of my own pocket to right matters if I thought they are guilty? They have no money. I have had to pay to carry on the investigation for Delorey. I know he and Mantir never committed this murder. That is why I sympathise with them.

"A lot of talk has been made about Peter Delorey's alleged confession. When analysed Delorey's own story contradicts itself. He told how he and Mantir had left a Clarendon Hill car and walked to Porter station back and forth several times, and later strolled with the girl three or four miles. This walking alone would have taken nearer a day than two or three hours.

STORY OF AUTOPSY.

"Then again the autopsy of Medical Examiner William D. Swan contradicts the story. Dr. Swan stated under oath that there was not the slightest sign of a struggle on the body or clothing, and that the only wounds were the four parallel cuts in the throat. When found the clothing was not disturbed. The girl was struck down where she fell and had not been dragged. She had been caught unexpectedly by the man whom she trusted enough to go to so lonely a spot and in a frenzy fatal wounds were inflicted.

"I asked Peter Delorey why he ever let himself be forced into such a trap. I asked him why he should tell such a thing when it wasn't true, and this was his reply which subsequent developments prove conclusively was correct:

"'Well they kept nagging me. My aunt would join them and say I did and I would say I didn't and she would say I did and I would answer I didn't. Then they told me Mantir had told them I did it. I was tired and scared. I didn't know what to do. They brought all kinds of people in to me to repeat that Mantir had said I killed the girl.

"They told me they would save me if I would tell the truth about the Greek, that they didn't care for the foreigner. Then it suddenly occurred to me that if I did what they wanted I might get free, and then I could come forward and tell them that I was only bluffing them, that Jim didn't do it at all.'

"Mrs. Delorey told me she kept saying to Peter at the examination, 'You did it. You know you did it!' and that he would reply, 'I didn't.'

CONFESSION FALSE.

"But the significant feature of that confession was that Delorey at the trial refused to stand by it. He denounced it as a falsehood. Every inducement was held out if he would vouch for that confession, but he wouldn't.

"There are other things that will convince the Governor and council our claim of innocence is right and true. Mrs. Elizabeth K. Delorey, the aunt of my client, and the woman who volunteered the information to Patrolman Preabo a year after the crime, which led to the arrest of Peter and Jim, is a big issue in the pardon proceedings."

Politicians Dine John J. Toomey

John J. Toomey of South Boston was tendered a complimentary dinner at the City Club, commemorating his completion of twenty-five years of newspaper work. Governor Walsh, Lieutenant Governor Barry, Mayor Curley, Monsignor Patterson, District Attorney Pelletier and the Rev. Lyman R. Page were among the speakers who praised Mr. Toomey and his work.

8 Women Saved in Manchester Fire

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 20.—Eight women were carried through smoke-filled corridors down four flights of stairs to the street when a fire was discovered in the Merrill apartment. Andrew B. Brastofels, an invalid, who had quarters on the third floor, jumped from his window to the street and is now in the Sacred Heart Hospital seriously injured.

Boston Attorney to Wed Hyde Park Girl

Joseph Santosuosso, takes place this morning in St. Leonard's Church, Prince street, North End.

Local Amateur Stars Take Dance Prizes at Boston Theatre

Better dancing featured the second day's dancing carnival at the Boston Theatre. Louise Alexander and John Jarrott were at their best. Their specialty dances were well received, and Jarrott brought down the house with a solo dance called "The Paul Revere Girls."

The amateurs improved in the one-step, hesitation, Maxixe and tango. The first two events went to Mr. Chamberlain and his sister Pauline. In the Maxixe Miss Ethel Campbell and Roy Pierson won the cup.

Several innovations at today's matinee includes a one-step by Miss Ora Dell, a noted ballet dancer, who gained fame with Valeska Suratt, and Roy Pierson.

SUMMER DAYS ARE BLUE SERGE DAYS

Have you a blue serge suit in your wardrobe? Yes, summer days are blue serge days—a blue serge suit looks cool—and its looks are not deceiving.

No man's wardrobe is really complete without at least one blue serge. A suit that goes with any dress combination—no matter what kind of hat, shoes, shirt or tie you wear, a blue serge suit looks one hundred per cent good.

Our assortments for this season are wonderfully complete in every detail. Just the styles you most want—models for the young men of progressive ideas, who want clothes "a little different," who demand the utmost in style and workmanship. And there's styles and styles for the man who is conservative—expressing a deal of individuality without conspicuousness.

Smart Suits of hand-twisted English finish blue serge, full weight. We sold this suit last year for $17.50. This is, without question, the greatest value ever offered in a blue serge suit at $15.00

Here's a suit of conservative design that we have made a leader for the past five years. Warranted to give the utmost in wear. Always sold at $20.00 under old tariff schedules. Now $17.50

Hand-tailored blue serges, made up in decidedly English or more modified American models; either with plain or patch pockets; both clear cut and unfinished weave. An exceptionally clever suit and priced low at $20.00

Blue Serge and Unfinished Worsted Suits that represent the highest type of "Clothes of Refinement." Designed by men who know what a summer suit should be. And in these suits we offer you clothes without stiffening or padding of any kind—just the best of materials carefully tailored to give you a well-dressed appearance, yet with worlds of comfort. In single or double-breasted models. Let us show you just why you cannot comfortably go through the summer without at least one of these suits at $25.00

And now we come to a silk-lined model—a beauty! Tailored from an exceptionally fine quality of English blue serge and cut along Fashion's newest lines. Coat is lined with a pure dye quality of silk throughout. Priced low at $27.50

Handsome, serviceable and comfortable suits for summer wear—tailored from the finest serge obtainable, and imported by us direct from Martin & Sons, Huddersfield, England and E. T. Yates, of Honley, England. Custom-made suits like this would cost you all of $50.00, and in some shops as high as $60.00. Our great purchasing power, as manufacturing retailers, makes it possible to offer you these suits at the wonderfully low prices of..... $30.00 and $35.00

Natty Blue Serge Suits for Boys

Made of the same excellent grade of materials as goes into suits for men, and the same careful workmanship is apparent throughout. Coats are in Norfolk style, knife pleated and with patch pockets; trousers are the popular knickerbockers. Suits that are actually worth $8.50—every cent of it. Sizes 6 to 18 Years. Specially Priced..... $6.50

SENATORS ARE VERY KIND TO THE BANKERS

They have just done a job in the Massachusetts Senate for our friends the bankers—some of our friends the bankers—and as a citizen you ought to know about it.

Former Senator George Holden Tinkham, optimist, had introduced a little bill, which the bankers didn't like, and the patriots of the Massachusetts Senate, just naturally, killed the bill.

It goes against the grain of some Senators, kindly souls, to offend bankers and such.

The bill wasn't long, or dreadful, or filled with "wherefores" or "aforesaids." It read like this:

An Act Relative to Officers, Directors and Employees of Trust Companies.

Section 1.—No officer, director or employe of a trust company shall receive or be beneficiary, either directly or indirectly, any fee, other than a legitimate fee paid an attorney at law for legal services, commission, gift, profit or other consideration for or on account of any loan, purchase, sale, payment, exchange or transaction with respect to stocks, bonds or other investment securities, or notes, loans, bills of exchange, acceptances, bankers, bills, cable transfers or mortgages made by or on behalf of a trust company, of which he is such officer, director or employe, except that any officer, director or employe of a trust company may borrow from such company in accordance with law.

Section 2.—Any person violating any provision of this act shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding five thousands, or by imprisonment of not exceeding one year, or both.

George Holden Tinkham, optimist, who drew the bill, called it "a measure of common honesty in banking."

FOR THE TINKHAM BILL—Bellamy, Rep.; J. H. Brennan, Dem.; Burbank, Prog.; Doyle, Rep.; Fitzgerald, Dem.; Hickey, Dem.; Horgan, Dem.; Leonard, Dem.; McCarthy, Dem.; McLean, Rep.; Nichols, Rep.; Sibley, Dem.; Teller, Rep.; Wells, Rep.—14.

NO—Bagley, Rep.; Baxeley, Rep.; Boyer, Dem.; Chase, Rep.; Clark, Rep.; Dean, Dem.; Draper, Dem.; Eldredge, Rep.; Fisher, Dem.; Gifford, Rep.; Gordon, Rep.; Hilton, Rep.; Hobbs, Rep.; Johnson, Rep.; Langler, Rep.; Mack, Dem.; McGonagle, Dem.; Norwood, Rep.; O'Rourke, Dem.; Sheehan, Dem.; Timilty, Dem.; Ward, Rep.; Williams, Rep.—23.

NOT VOTING—J. B. Brennan, Dem., and Cox, Prog.

And 14 to 23 the Tinkham bill went to the legislative tomb.

HUB FOLK AT HUBBARD-LAWRENCE WEDDING

FORMER CAMBRIDGE MAN CLAIMS BRIDE TODAY IN NEW YORK CITY

Ruth Arend, whose engagement to Louis Tracy Girdler was recently announced.

There are few girls whose engagement has brought forth so many congratulations as has Miss Ruth Arend to Louis Tracy Girdler. There have been many luncheons, dinners and theatre parties for her of late. The coming week will bring a luncheon and card party at the Brae Burn Country Club, and on Saturday a theatre party will be given in her honor. Miss Arend is a pretty girl with much charm and vivacity, and her popularity is undisputed.

* * *

Any number of Bostonians have gone over to New York for the wedding there today of Miss Gladys Lawrence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Lawrence of No. 146 West Eighty-eight street, and William O. Hubbard, formerly of Cambridge, and son of Sanford B. Hubbard of that city. The ceremony takes place at the home of the bride's parents, but will be attended only by a few intimate friends and near relatives on account of illness in the bride's family.

Mr. Hubbard, who was graduated from Harvard in 1905, and from Harvard Law School in 1911, was assistant professor in English at Harvard before going to New York a few years ago.

* * *

Scores of young folks from Winthrop and East Boston will take part in the dramatic entertainment to be given this evening in Huntington Chambers Hall under the direction of Miss Mabel A. Golden.

* * *

Dr. and Mrs. Nathan Chandler Foote of Boston, who have been in Lenox, have gone to Dublin, N. H., to spend the Summer at their estate there.

* * *

Mrs. William J. Wright has just returned to her home in Dartmouth street from New York, where she has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Clarence Moore.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Bigelow have closed their town house in Gloucester street, and have gone to their estate in Cohasset.

* * *

Shortly after Harvard Class Day, on June 16, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gratton Minot, their grandson, Grafton Winthrop Minot, and their young granddaughter, Miss Houghton Mason, are sailing for England, where they will remain though the Winter. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lindell Winthrop, who have been at their eBacon street house, have already sailed and the others will join them. Grafton Minot is to enter Oxford University.

* * *

Mrs. Horace H. Coolidge is planning to go to her Cohasset estate early in June. She will be joined there by her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred D. Heard, and their daughter, Miss Marjorie Heard of Cambridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Burrage and their daughter, Elizabeth, who are at their country place, "The Ledges" at Southampton, will go to their estate at Marion the first of June. In August they sail for Europe.

M'MANUS RAPS 'WHITEWASH' BY POLICE BOARD

Representative P. Joseph McManus today issued a statement denouncing the verdict of the police trial board which exonerated two patrolmen of charges brought by Mr. McManus as a result of his arrest for drunkenness last Winter. Mr. McManus calls the decision a "foregone conclusion," and says:

The report of Commissioner O'Meara in my case against Officers Andrews and Kelley which exonerated the two officers of the charges against them was based on the testimony given by patrolmen, a police sergeant, a lieutenant, a captain, cab drivers, night watchmen and the like, which, if aired out by a proper tribunal, a court and jury, would be found to be wholly biased and prejudicial.

The witnesses who testified for me were mostly disinterested and while they were hounded by the attorney for the officers, gave a true statement of the facts. It was clearly shown that both officers used undue violence and that Officer Kelley used obscene and vile language.

I am willing to be judged by the people who have known me all my life. Everybody knew before the charges were brought that the case would end as it did, but I was surprised that it took such a great man as Commissioner O'Meara two weeks to render a foregone conclusion.

Snedden Talks at Church Convention

Dr. David Snedden, State Commissioner of Education, today addressed the Massachusetts Universalist Sunday School Association at its convention in Wakefield on "Some Modern Problems of Moral Education." Rev. Edward Noyes of Newton Centre spoke of "The Children of the Church." Mrs. Milton P. Higgins of Worcester gave an address on "The Parents in the Sunday School." Mrs. R. M. Barney gave the message of the State supervisor, and the annual address of the president, W. D. Sprague, dealt with the growing possibilities of the association's work.

Damage Board Begins Hearings

The commission appointed to award damages because of the abolition of the drawbridge over the Charles river, near the new Stadium bridge, has begun taking evidence. The commission consists of General Charles K. Darling, Joseph A. Conry and John T. Swift.

National Horse Day Is Planned

The directors of the Massachusetts S. P. C. A., at a meeting today, announced that steps were being taken to have the State observe a National Horse Day. These gifts were announced: $1,417.50 from Mrs. M. C. H. Wilson, $750 from David Simonds, and $25.85 from Mrs. Florence Lyman. $50 proceeds of fair, from Newton Centre Band of Mercy, $200 from the New Haven S. P. C. A., $50 from the Women's Pennsylvania S. P. C. A., and $40 from the Kent County (Michigan) Humane Society, for "Our Dumb Animals" $50 from Mr. A. H., $25 each from Elisha Gunn, Miss Lucy S. Brewer, and for the Angell Memorial Building, Chester A. Atkins, $15 each from Mrs. A. S. Porter, Jr., Miss Elizabeth F. Kelly and Mrs. Donald Gordon.

Hours and Wages for Women Debated

"Hours and Wages for Women" was the topic for discussion at today's gathering at the Women's Educational and Industrial Union. Miss May Allison, associate director of the research department, presided, and described work of the union. Mrs. David R. Dewey of the State Board of Labor and Industries, Miss Mabel Gilleaple, secretary of the Women's Trade Union League, and Miss Helen R. Norton, president of the Employes' Association, spoke.

$10,186 Verdict for Injuries from Wire

A jury in the Essex Superior Court at Salem today awarded Philip Scully of Hamilton a verdict of $10,186 in his suit for $15,000, against the Beverly Gas & Electric Company for injuries to his nine-year-old daughter, Eleanor Scully. Three years ago Scully and his child were out walking in Hamilton. The little girl touched the end of a wire. It proved to be heavily charged with electricity, and one of her hands was permanently disfigured. The verdict was the largest in the Essex Court in several years.

WORCESTER, May 20.—Miss Mabel Bowers, pianist at the Crown Theatre, stayed a fire panic, calming 400 people, by playing "Sit Down, You're Rocking the Boat," when a roll of films burst into flames at the theatre.

When the cry of fire first came, women and children screamed and men trampled them down in a mad rush for the entrance. In the excitement no one thought of opening the other doors.

Compares Mary Dyer to Mrs. Pankhurst

"The mention of Mary Dyer's name brought to the Puritans the same thought we have now when we hear of Mrs. Pankhurst," the Rev. Dr. George Hodges told the Bostonian Society. "Mary Dyer inspired the Puritans with terror. She and the other Quakers were locked up, no doubt, as anarchists."

Cloth Topples on Workers; Five Hurt

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were dull and on a lower range today. There was no change in sentiment, but markets suffered from indifference. There appeared to be little inclination to operate for either a rise or a fall. Inertia was the feature.

Early in the afternoon in New York declines included Chesapeake & Ohio ¾, Canadian Pacific ¼, Southern Pacific ¾, Missouri Pacific 1⅛, New Haven ½, American Can ¼, Steel ½, Amalgamated ¼, American Smelting ⅝, Northern Pacific ⅛, Union Pacific ¼ and Utah Copper ½. Baltimore & Ohio was up ¼.

In Boston Boston & Maine was off ⅛, while New Haven was a point lower at 67½. It had touched 66⅝ here. Pond Creek had lost its early gain and was off ⅛. Osceola was down a point. Elevated, Fruit and American Telephone were unchanged.

STOCKS HAD WEAKER TONE.

There was a weaker tone to stocks when markets opened in this country the demand being very light. Most active issues eased off at the start, but a few held firm, giving lists an irregular appearance. Early trading in Boston was torpid. Local business had no range. In New York trading was dull and the price movement narrow. Soon after the opening Missouri Pacific sold under 11, but made a partial recovery during the morning.

The bear drive against Chesapeake & Ohio was not renewed when the market began. Directors have given no hint to what they are going to do about the dividend rate when they meet tomorrow. Much of yesterday's selling of this issue was said to be genuine liquidation by small stockholders, who are afraid that the road will not earn enough money to maintain the present rate if betterment expenditures are as large for several years as has been agreed upon. Uncertainty still exists as to how Missouri Pacific will adjust its financial difficulties.

STEEL A LITTLE LOWER.

Steel opened a little lower and like Amalgamated, remained all the forenoon below yesterday's final price. Reports concerning the steel industry were no more favorable. It is waiting for a decision as to Eastern freight rates. Prices for steel products are on low levels, and that fact has failed to induce much buying. It is feared that plants will reduce operations, which are contracted already, if new business does not arrive soon.

Americans were irregular in London, with Canadian Pacific about the strongest among internationals in that market. In that and other departments dullness prevailed. Rumors that failures of importance might occur in Russia has turned foreign attention to that country rather than to Mexico. Concerning the latter, it is stated that the British are not taking the view that the Huerta regime is nearing its end and that this country may not have to send an army to the Montezuma capital. Doubts are expressed abroad, however, if the next government of Mexico will be any improvement.

New Haven was one of the weakest railroads and this was attributed to Mr. Mellen's revelations before the Interstate Commerce Commission. Traders said they were not of a character to inspire confidence in roads in general. By noon Missouri Pacific was off a point and there was great interest in the meeting of its directorate then in progress. First hour business in New York did not total quite 47,000 shares.

MASS GAS A FEATURE.

The weakness of Massachusetts Gas common was a feature of the Boston market, it opening two points lower and sagging a little more during the first hour. It was unusually active besides. It had not recovered when afternoon arrived. New Haven sold below 67 here. There was little business in coppers. The majority declined when they moved at all. Greene-Cananea and Osceola were among those to show the most loss. Pond Creek touched a new high price for its present movement.

COPPER BUYING CONTINUES.

One of the best trade signs now to be observed is a continuation of copper metal buying by domestic consumers. The new orders are not large, but aggregate a fair bulk and the movement is significant of better times ahead. Manufacturers who use copper in large quantities evidently expect general business to improve. One statement of interest reads: "While domestic takings of the metal indicated adherence to the hand to mouth policy by home manufacturers, producers reported that they had received inquiries from these interests, which as a general rule mean the placing of large orders."

The price is firm at 14¼ cents a pound.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

The largest order of tin plate reported this year—2,000 boxes—has been placed by Standard Oil with the United States Steel Corporation. The amount was previously announced as 250,000 boxes.

A Florida Congressman wants a law passed to compel bank officers and directors to report monthly to the comptroller of the currency the amount of overdrafts on bank holdings in their institutions.

The London copper warrants market opened this morning and by best quiet this morning and by noon spot and futures were up 1s. to each. Both were unchanged at the close.

General Electric directors have declared a regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent, payable July 15 to stock of record June 1.

For the first 1914 quarter the Boston & Albany reports that its deficit increased $236,467.

Charge Couple Held with $4,600 Larceny

The arrests of Charles H. Hopkins in Joplin, Mo., and Mrs. Harry C. Moore, in Kansas City, were made known at police headquarters by the sending of Inspectors Caffin and McCarthy to bring them back. Hopkins was formerly a Boston man, with mining interests, and lived together with Mrs. Moore, is charged with the larceny of $4,600 from the late Mrs. Ann Amelia Morse of Boston in 1909.

C.L.U. Protests B.&M. Stock Disposal

The executive board of the Boston Central Labor Union has appointed a committee to see Governor Walsh and protest against the disposal of stock of the Boston & Maine Railroad, now held by the Boston Holding Company. The committee has indorsed the new health bill proposed by Governor Walsh, provided the board shall have a wage worker in its membership.

'General' Coxey Asks to Speak at Capitol

"General" Coxey with his army of nine will ask Vice-President Marshall and Speaker Clark today for permission to speak from the Capitol steps. Twenty years ago when Coxey marched to Washington, permission to speak on the steps of the Capitol was denied him and the general was arrested for walking on the grass.

Mayor Curley Will Be Guest of Lambs

Two Injured in Quincy Auto Crash

Gustav Bartasch of Jamaica Plain and his niece, Mrs. Elizabeth Wieland, were injured when an automobile driven by the uncle collided head-on with a light motor truck owned by Morton & Martin, carpenters, in Quincy. Bartasch was slightly shaken. Mrs. Wieland suffered a broken wrist.

Grady Plans Fire Promotion Tests

Fire Commissioner Grady announces he is conferring with the Civil Service Commission on the promotional examinations for officers and privates of the department which he plans to hold next month. The last civil service examinations for promotion were held in 1911.

NO. 18

ATTENTION, MAYOR CURLEY!

If you had made as good a contract for the people of Boston with the Electric Light Company as the City of Atlanta, Ga., made with its Electric Light Company, Boston would save about one million, three hundred and seventy-three thousand dollars during the period of the contract which you wish to foist upon Boston. This great sum saved by the city would give more than ONE THOUSAND, EIGHT HUNDRED AND THIRTY WORKMEN A FULL YEAR'S EMPLOYMENT.

Would you have been elected Mayor, Mr. Curley, if you had told the people of Boston that you considered the 12 per cent. dividends of the Edison Electric Light Company more sacred than the bread and butter of the clerks, the laborers, the police, the firemen, the nurses, the matrons employed by the city, whom you have reduced or discharged, or more sacred than the pleasure and health which the citizens obtain from their parks and public buildings which your FALSE economy tends to cripple?

FORBES CALLS MELLEN'S STORY HISTORY-MAKING

By S. C. FORBES.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—J. P. Morgan ruled the New Haven directorate with an iron hand and tyrannized that so autocratically and tyrannically that not one of them would contradict him had he called black white.

William Rockefeller was the only other person on the board who carried the slightest weight.

The New Haven directors having made Mellen the "goat," exactly as he had prophesied to retiring Governor Lilley, he decided to do vigorous butting on the witness stand before the Interstate Commerce Commission. More than one smug reputation was besmirched. Mellen apparently held nothing back.

The proceedings yesterday made history. Ex-President Roosevelt, dubbed the "Little Father" in Washington; the late E. H. Harriman, described by Mellen as "a bokey man who was used to scare New Englanders"; Lewis Cass Ledyard, held up as a greedy milker of the Boston & Maine cow; Charles F. Murphy and Messrs. Gaffney and Collins of Tammany Hall; Percy Rockefeller, son of William Rockefeller, pictured as a banker or agent for mysterious holders of Westchester stock; John L. Billard, a man Mellen kept his eye on very closely; the Boston Herald, Oakleigh Thorne, who pocketed double commissions; W. C. A. Gotshall, who got $1,000,000 of easy money from Mellen; Gardiner M. Lane of Lee, Higginson & Company, all these and others were brought into Mellen's sensational testimony.

WONDERFUL MEMORY.

Mellen's memory was phenomenal. He replied rapidly to every question asked him from 10 in the morning to nearly 5 in the afternoon. He had not a paper or memorandum of any kind in front of him. Often he quoted exact days of the month and could always recall figures. His own version of his memory was: "I have a very good memory. The great trouble is that I remember a great many things that I ought to forget."

Only once did he manifest the semblance of emotion. That was when he begged not to have to testify how Mr. Morgan humiliated him over the Westchester purchase.

"Mr. Commissioner," he pleaded, "it was a personal conversation. The man is dead. He was under great stress. It was in the height of the panic of 1907. I think more weight was on his shoulders at that time than has been on any other man in the country, not excepting even the President of the United States, and I think a great deal of him"—meaning Morgan. But the incident had to be related.

Mellen began by giving another terse, businesslike description of how J. P. Morgan made railroad presidents—this time for the Northern Pacific. It was over the phone.

"That you, Mr. Mellen?"

"Yes."

"Nobody can hear what you say?"

"No."

"Will you take the Northern Pacific presidency?"

"Yes."

"Will you leave the matter to me?"

"Yes."

"Good-bye."

Mellen added: "I did not know what my salary was to be until six weeks after."

By Mr. Folk—Were you Morgan's man? A.—I have been called by the newspapers his office boy.

Q.—Who dominated the New Haven? A.—They used to vote as a rule pretty much as Mr. Morgan voted. I recall no case in which he did not have his way. Morgan and William Rockefeller were the only men who were continuously in the finance committee. Jacob H. Schiff, of Kuhn, Loeb & Company, wrote in November, 1908, asking a chance to negotiate for a proposed issue of bonds. He did not get it.

May Help You if Lungs Are Affected

Proper diet, fresh air and temperate habits are beneficial to persons suffering from Lung Trouble; but as a great many instances reports show that the action of a medicine for this affection has materially helped in bringing about recovery. For more than fifteen years Ashman's Attenative, a medicine for Throat and Lung Trouble, has accomplished good results. Read what it did in this case:

Madison Lake, Minn.
December 1908 to March
Gentlemen: In December, 1908, I was taken with severe cough, which continued to grow worse. Spells each time in my bed. My doctor advised me to go to Florida. Instead I started for Denver, Colo., where I stayed for about three months. Went to take Ashman's Attenative, as my condition was getting worse instead of better. In March, 1910, I returned improved, but not entirely well, have a good appetite, can sleep well, and feel like a new man. I am also glad to say that I now weigh 160, my weight was 140 pounds. I feel glad to give this testimonial for my health.
PAUL L. FASNACHT.

Ashman's Attenative is sent direct from laboratory free to any reader of this paper who writes for it. Prepared in tablet form, it is a most effective, scientific, yet safe remedy for Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Stubborn Colds and in opposing the germs of Consumption. Sold by druggists, or sent direct by Ashman Laboratory, 1 Ashman Court, Philadelphia, Pa., for trial treatment and additional evidence.—ADVERTISEMENT

City Stands to Lose $4,000 Under Flour Contract for Year

Whether Mayor Curley's administration stands to cost the city $4,000 by the purchase of a full year's supply of flour, prominent merchants say today, depends wholly upon a "more or less" modifying clause inserted in the advertisements asking for bids on the same.

Members of the Flour Club assert that D. Frank Doherty, superintendent of supplies, in advertising for the full amount of flour needed by the city for a year to come, after being warned that it would entail a loss of $4,000 to the city.

Mr. Doherty asserts, on the other hand that he has inserted a "more or less" clause in his advertisement. If the bids are low enough, he says, he will buy 5,000 barrels. If not, he will either reject all bids or purchase only sufficient flour to last a few weeks.

64 Americans Slain in Guatemala War

PUERTO BARRIOS, Guatemala, May 20.—Racial hatred started war in the Jurica district last Tuesday and at least sixty-four Americans employed by the United Fruit Company have been killed and 100 more wounded in three days of bloody fighting.

Mansfield to Hunt State Tax Dodgers

"There are, roughly speaking, $100,000,000 of taxable bonds of the State of Massachusetts now outstanding," said State Treasurer Frederick W. Mansfield. "It may be that every person who holds these bonds pays his taxes, but if there is any tax-dodging going on it is my intention to stop it."

United States Tells How to Care for Baby

Voters in the fourteenth Massachusetts District received letters from Congressman Gilmore announcing that there is ready for free distribution a number of copies of a pamphlet, entitled "The Care of the Baby." The document prepared for the United States Public Health Service tells how to feed, dress, bathe and in other ways care for babies in the hot weather. Copies can be secured by writing to the Department of Agriculture.

Ettor Again Leading Wakefield Strike

Joseph J. Ettor, the I. W. W. strike leader, is back in Wakefield and is held secret conferences with the leaders of the strikers of the Heywood Brothers & Wakefield Rattan Company's factory.

A conference will be held today between the strikers who are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and members of the State Board of Arbitration, together with officials of the company.

VITAL FORCE

Disease germs are on every hand. They are in the very air we breathe. A system "run down" is a prey for them. One must have vital force to withstand them. Vital force depends on digestion—on whether or not food nourishes—on the quality of blood coursing through the body.

DR. PIERCE'S

Golden Medical Discovery

Strengthens the weak stomach. Gives good digestion. Enlivens the sluggish liver. Feeds the starved nerves. Again full health and strength return. A general upbuilding enables the heart to pump like an engine running in oil. The vital force is once more established to full power.

Year in and year out for over forty years this great health-restoring remedy has been spreading throughout the entire world—because of its ability to make the sick well and the weak strong. Don't despair of being your old self again." Give this vegetable remedy a trial—Today—Now. You will soon feel "like new again." Sold in liquid or tablet form by Druggists or trial box for 50c by mail. Write Dr. V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

HILL TOWN "PRAYER" WRITTEN BY BAXTER, MELLEN DECLARES

Did the fact that Mr. Haskell owned a big newspaper operate as an inducement to make the loan?" asked Joseph W. Folk, chief counsel of the commission.

"It did not operate as an inducement not to make the loan," Mellen replied.

Folk then sought to bring out that the New Haven desired to have newspaper presses in Massachusetts lubricated with New Haven oil at that particular time on account of the Boston Railroad Holding Company bill, then pending in the Massachusetts Legislature.

Q.—Was the Boston Railroad Holding bill pending at that time? A.—I think that was passed about June, 1909.

Q.—Whom did you consult in regard to the Haskell loan? A.—The finance committee of the New England Navigation Company.

Q.—Was that made up of the finance committee of the New Haven—that is, the Morgan-Rockefeller-Miller committee? A.—Approximately the same.

Q.—Do you recall any other loans made by the navigation company except those to Haskell, Billard and yourself? A.—I don't recall. I don't put that is a big contract, Governor. There may have been loans.

Q.—Any big loans? A.—I believe the New Haven or the navigation company lent at least $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 to the New York Central and $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 to the Pennsylvania Railroad.

UP TO BILLARD.

Q.—How about the $400,000 worth of Boston Herald bonds held by the Billard Company? A.—You'll have to search Mr. Billard for that. I have nothing to do with the Billard Company.

Q.—What did you consider the value of the Haskell notes? A.—At the time of the loan I thought that they were worth their face value—the interest had been promptly paid.

Q.—Are they worth the same now? A.—Hardly; the paper has been reorganized.

Q.—Did you have any part in the reorganization? A.—Only in an unofficial capacity.

Q.—Did you do anything to protect the holders of those notes? A.—I did nothing; I said nothing; I listened.

Q.—What did you hear? A.—Nothing very satisfactory and I reported likewise.

Q.—Was Mr. Olney present at these meetings? A.—Never.

The witness had ceased to be decidedly doubtful as to who had been present at the conferences but said he thought Mr. Abercrombie and Mr. O'Brien, the editor of the Herald" were there.

Q.—How many of those meetings did you attend? A.—Not more than three.

Q.—Where were they held? A.—At the Union Club in Boston.

Q.—Is it not generally known that the New England Navigation Company had an interest in the Herald? A.—I don't think it was very widely advertised.

DIDN'T TAKE LONG.

Folk then switched back to a discussion of the Boston railroad holding bill which was "rushed" through the Massachusetts Legislature to clear up the situation which grew out of the attempt of the New Haven to buy the Boston & Maine. In reply to a question as to how long it took to get this bill through the Legislature Mellen said:

"About fifty or sixty days after Governor Draper sent a message advocating its passage."

The witness then protested that the bill was a measure advocated by Governor Draper personally. He explained that the New Haven did not favor the bill, but considered it better than the then existing situation, which was full of embarrassment and misunderstanding.

Q.—Who sent you the drafts of the Boston Railroad Holding bill? A.—Either Mr. Choate or Mr. Byrnes, vice-president of the New Haven.

Q.—You mean Mr. Byrnes, the publicity agent of the New Haven, don't you? A.—That's as you look at it. In these days no railroad can neglect publicity—but sometimes they get too much of it.

Q.—Who was Mr. Choate? A.—At that time he was the legislative agent of the New Haven in Boston.

Mellen stated emphatically that "if I had not been for the trolleys there would not have been any trouble in Massachusetts about the railroads."

Q.—What was the trouble over the trolleys? A.—The public didn't like the idea of the railroads owning the trolleys.

Q.—Why not? A.—I don't know—ask the public.

AMEND ANY LAW.

When the witness stated that "There is no law that can't be amended," Folk snapped: "What do you mean by that?"

"Only that it is possible for any law to be amended unless it is a constitutional measure," parried Mellen smiling.

Q.—Did not the New Haven spend $100,000 to influence public opinion? A.—That's your interpretation of it, Governor. It did not so far as I know.

Q.—Do you know that a large number of newspapers were carried on the New Haven payrolls? A.—I do not—I do not believe that it is true.

Q.—Did not the Boston Republic carry great amounts of advertising for which the New Haven was billed? A.—I believe they did.

Q.—Who was the owner of the Republic? A.—Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston.

Q.—Did that have anything to do with the use of the Republic by the New Haven? A.—I don't think it worked against it.

The authorship of the famous "Prayer from the Hills" which figured prominently in the passage of the railroad holding bill through the Massachusetts Legislature was next sought by Folk.

BAXTER WROTE PRAYER.

Mellen stated that so far as he knew the "Prayer" was written by Sylvester Baxter.

Q.—Can you give us the exact wording of that "Prayer?" A.—I can't. I don't pray to that language.

Q.—The word is spelt with an "a" not with an "e" Folk reminded the witness.

Mellen smiled but did not reply.

Folk then tried to show a discrepancy between the testimony of Mellen and John L. Billard, who was heard by the commission recently. Billard testified he was entitled to $2,745,000 to which he made off the sale of Boston & Maine stock brought from and sold to the New Haven. He had contracts to this effect, he said.

Folk today produced minutes of a directors' meeting of the New Haven dated October 8, 1909, wherein it was specifically stated that Billard should be entitled to "a reasonable compensation for his time and risk."

Mellen said the minutes were true.

Q.—Then it would look as if Billard got away with the profit that should have gone to the New Haven? A.—I would not say that. These minutes were made nearly four months after the contract with Billard had been closed. That contract was dated June 30, 1909.

DONE FOR A PURPOSE.

Q.—Then these minutes are not correct—they do not give the right light on the situation? A.—They are correct, unquestionably so. It may look as if they are not, but anything like that was done for a purpose.

Q.—For what purpose? A.—Well, it was done for the purpose of trying to get back some of the profit made by Mr. Billard. We felt that he had made a greater profit than we had anticipated.

Q.—Then you admit that the compensation awarded Mr. Billard was not a reasonable one? A.—I did not say so. Billard had already got his compensation when these minutes were drawn. He had gone away with it. He got it according to the contract made June 30, 1909.

Q.—But these minutes say he was to receive but a "reasonable compensation." A.—The report in those minutes was passed for the purpose of enabling me to get more information if I could. These minutes were passed by the board of directors of the New Haven.

Folk read from the same minutes which approved a report of the executive committee made October 7, 1909, which showed that the New Haven had bought property from Billard and sold it to the Boston & Maine Railroad Holding Company. This stock was bought for $1,200 and sold at 340, but the report instructed Mellen to get an assignment from Billard, showing that a profit had been made.

Q.—What about this record? A.—These minutes are false on their face. I should say that so far as that report is concerned those minutes are absolutely incorrect. There must have been a mistake made by the secretary.

RECORD WAS WRONG.

Folk then took up the earlier contract between Billard and the New Haven, dated June 30, 1909.

Q.—What contract is this? A.—Attorney Cummings—That is the agreement between Billard and the New Haven.

Q.—I know that? What authority was there for this agreement? A.—That authority.

Q.—Was that the way the New Haven did business? A.—That was the way it did that business.

Q.—The only minutes we are able to find state that the profits of Mr. Billard in the Boston & Maine stock deal were to revert to the New Haven except a reasonable commission for Mr. Billard. Therefore, we must conclude that the minutes are wrong or that the Billard company is a subsidiary of the New Haven. A.—I can't say any stronger terms than that minute is wrong.

Q.—Mr. Billard gave a note to the National City Bank for about $11,000,000. The New Haven paid that note? A.—I have always understood that the New Haven paid that note.

Q.—You paid $20,000 to the National City Bank for handling the business? A.—That has always been a sore spot with me. I had understood that there was to be no such commission, but Mr. Stillman demanded it.

Folk then read the agreement between Billard and the New Haven, executed June 30, 1909, and referred again to the minutes of the directors' meeting, which stated that Billard was to have no profit except a reasonable commission. Folk asked Mellen how he reconciled the statements that Billard should have all the profits and that he should have none but a commission.

Mellen said: "That vote stating that all profits in the deal except a reasonable commission to Mr. Billard were to revert to the New Haven was passed to strengthen my position and enable me to get back what I could from Mr. Billard. But Billard had got the stuff. My directors sent me in pursuit of a man who had a three months' start on me. He had skipped with the two million, and I was assigned to chase him up under a three months' handicap and get back what I could."

CLAIM NURSE INFLUENCED WILL OF WARD

A fight to break the will of the late George A. Ward, Newton, real estate man and nephew of Samuel Ward, the stationer, was begun in the East Cambridge Superior Court today before Judge Brown. The contestants are the widow, Mrs. Annie H. Ward, two brothers, Charles F. and Frederick A., and two sisters, Miss Caroline R. Ward of Waterville, Vt., and Mrs. Florence A. Proctor of Los Angeles.

Ward died in January, leaving an estate valued at $80,000. He had been estranged from his wife for some years and to her he left "the just share to which she is entitled by law, but no more." After making a number of small bequests to relatives, Ward left the rest of the estate to Mrs. Emma F. Russell of Haviland street, Boston. Mrs. Russell is a trained nurse and was in the courtroom today.

The contestants alleged that Mrs. Russell used undue influence over Ward. There is quite an array of legal talent in the case, Nobel, Davis & Stoner representing the contestants, Robert Mason for Mrs. Russell, and Walter Frederick of Ham, Frederick & Yount for the estate.

The first witness was Arvold D. Miller of Newton Centre, a gardener. He testified Ward had called at a Newton house where Mrs. Russell was stopping, that the two went out motoring and took walks together.

Ward was fifty-five. Mrs. Russell is an attractive woman with iron-gray hair.

Here from Reno for Deserting Wife

Harry L. Patch of Cambridge, who was arrested at Reno, Nev., last week on a charge of deserting his wife, has been brought to East Cambridge and today was locked up at the East Cambridge Jail. He will be tried in the Middlesex Superior Court next month. The arrest was the first in District Attorney Foreman's campaign to round up and bring to trial men accused of desertion.

Miss Blackwell Retorts to Antis

Alice Stone Blackwell told the New England Woman's Suffrage Association that equal suffrage does not mean loose morals, as she said the anti-suffragists declare. "We believe," said Miss Blackwell, "in the obligation of husbands and fathers to support their families, and in the duty of both men and women to uphold social purity."

How Boston Herald Got New Haven Money, Told by Mellen Himself

"How did the Billard Company get Herald bonds?"

"They got them in the reorganization of the Boston Herald. You will recall a certain 'sealed envelope' which has been mentioned," continued Mr. Mellen. "Well, that envelope contained certain notes of Mr. Haskell, who owned one-third of the Boston Herald. I persuaded, or induced, Mr. Billard to purchase the contents of that envelope for $303,000 or $302,000, I forget which, and he has held them since that time as a part of the assets of the Billard Company. He has had to pay assessments upon them, and I suppose they stand him in more than the original price he paid for them."

"How did you acquire the Haskell notes?" asked Mr. Folk.

"The New England Navigation Company had loaned him money. I had known him a long time, and when he wanted to borrow some money the finance committee of our board decided to make the loan."

"Were you engaged in the banking business at that time?"

"The Navigation Company had a perfect right to make this loan?"

"Why did you want to loan Haskell $300,000? Was it because he was an owner of the Boston Herald?"

"That was no disadvantage."

"Wasn't it the real reason?"

"Well, you are intimating that."

TRY THIS IF YOU HAVE DANDRUFF

Or Are Bothered With Falling Hair or Itching Scalp.

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every trace, sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to keep your hair looking rich, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everybody notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

STUDENTS SUE HAWLEY SCHOOL FOR SUSPENSION

Judge Wentworth today reported to the appellate division of the Municipal Court the suits brought by four of the schoolboys suspended from the Hawley School of Engineering for going to the opening baseball game of the American League here, not knowing, they allege, that it was against the rules.

John D. Heady of Stamford, Ct., John Perley of Arlington, and Earle S. Gardner of Worcester were the three boys now suing who attended the game. Irving E. Ellis, of New Britain, Ct., the fourth suing, did not go, but was suspended.

Judge Wentworth seeks to learn if President Thomas Hawley having agreed to remove the suspension, any case might lie. He said he was of opinion that Mr. Hawley, having been under a misapprehension, had done what he could to take off the stigma.

Attorney McConnell contended that the laying off of the boys for even three days was a suspension for which they might recover for the stigma of it, for loss of hours at school and for their expenses of board and lodging. Each suit was for $200.

OUIMET LOSES; LOCKWOOD, TOO; 3 YANKEES WIN

Today's Golf in Which Yankees Won and Lost

SANDWICH, Eng., May 20.—The summary of play affecting Americans in the British golf championship tourney today follows:

Second round—Frederick Herreshoff of New York defeated J. P. Platt, 4 up and 3 to play.

Harold Weber of Toledo defeated K. M. Carhale, 7 up and 6 to play.

Francis Ouimet, American open champion, was defeated by H. S. Burnell Tubbs, 2 down.

Third round—A. G. Lockwood of Boston was defeated by C. H. Hayward, 2 up and 1 to play.

BIG CROWD AT COURSE.

An immense crowd followed the pair despite the intense heat that beat down upon the course.

Tubbs showed that he was in top notch form by the way in which he started. The first three holes were halved, but the Briton captured the fourth, owned and the hole by poor work on the green. The fifth was his. But Tubbs made an approach shot on the sixth and easily took it, making him 2 up.

The seventh was halved when Ouimet started out with a long putt. The ninth was halved after both players had missed short putts. On the homeward journey of nine holes Tubbs finished 1 up, matching him 2 up on the match.

The play follows:

Tubbs
Out . . . 5 5 4 4 4 3 5 5—40
In. . . . 4 5 5 5 4 4 4 6 4—40—80

Ouimet
Out. . . 5 5 4 5 4 4 4 5 3 5—43
In. . . . 5 5 4 5 4 4 5 5 3 5—41—33

The sting of Ouimet's defeat was somewhat relieved when Herreshoff was returned a winner over Platt by 4 up and 3 to play. This advanced Herreshoff to the third round, making three Americans playing that round.

John Graham Jr., who put up such a phenomenal game in the recent contest for the St. George's cup, defeated the veteran J. H. Taylor, winning 2 up and 1 to play.

TUBBS AT HIS BEST.

From the turn to the 14th Tubbs played at the height of his game and Ouimet did poor work. After the 14th Ouimet was 3 down with 4 to go, but showed remarkable coolness. The 17th was halved when Tubbs made a fine recovery from a bunker. This made Tubbs 2 up with 3 to play. Ouimet captured the 18th by playing a fine tee shot leaving Tubbs 2 up with 2 to play. Tubbs made a short drive for the 17th, but Ouimet was on the green in two. Tubbs was plainly nervous and took six. This left him 1 up with 1 to play. Ouimet used a brassie from the tee at the 18th and went over the green into the rough.

His iron work in getting back to the green was inaccurate and Tubbs was down in four to the American's five, giving the Briton the match.

Tubbs was given a tremendous ovation, but the grit displayed by Ouimet was unanimously praised. The Briton was superior to Ouimet in approaching and his work with the iron clubs, but Ouimet excelled in his drives.

Another American worked his way into the third round when Harold Weber defeated K. M. Carhale. Weber's victory was overwhelming, he won by 7 up and 6 to play.

JENKINS DEFEATS MUNN.

Another upset in the title play occurred when J. L. C. Jenkins defeated Lionel Munn, alias O. L. Smith, the Irish star, 3 up and 2 to play. John Ball, eight-time champion of England, easily defeated L. Wood, 7 up and 6 to play.

Harold H. Hilton, present British champion, was paired today with Robert Harris, one of the best players in Great Britain. Hilton showed fine form on the first nine holes and was 2 up at the turn.

The two Harris brothers in Victories in the opening play left four among the sixty-four first-flight remaining in the tournament. The third round this was set for this afternoon.

Hilton was held closely by Harris on the second nine holes but won 2 up and 1 to play.

No event in local sporting circles in the past year has caused such a shock to the sporting fraternity as the reverse suffered by Francis Ouimet of the Brookline Country Club open golf champion of the United States at the hands of H. S. Burnell Tubbs of the Sunningdale England, club, in the British open championships at Sandwich, Eng., today, when the Briton disposed of the local boy 2 up.

When Ouimet left for England he was extended one of the warmest sendoffs ever accorded an athlete in this country. The modest youth said at sailing time that he was going against hard game but he would do his best to annex the British title. There was no one at the East Boston docks but who thought the youngster would fulfil his mission.

Primed for the big event with a few weeks' workout on his home links at the Country Club, Ouimet left the finishing touches on his form for his ten days' preparation over the same course on which he was defeated today.

TUBBS AN UNKNOWN.

When the news was flashed that Ouimet had lost the crowds in front of the AMERICAN bulletin board were disappointed. Nobody here had heard of Tubbs. Names like those of Hilton, Palmer and Carr of foreign fame were familiar to local golf enthusiasts through the advance notices of the big tournament. But Tubbs was unknown.

When prominent golf officers of this city were asked who Tubbs was nobody could answer. Even Tom McNamara, the famous professional golfer had never heard of the Englishman. It remained for John Anderson, the former State amateur champion, to furnish a few facts on the vanquisher of Ouimet.

Perhaps the keenest expression of regret is attributed to John Anderson, who said: "I did not eat my supper when Jerry Travers was beaten Monday, and I doubt if I eat my dinner today after learning of Francis' defeat today. It is a great shock to me. I really thought Ouimet would win the tournament. I am anxious to get further details of the match. The shock to me is all the greater when I learn that a man of Tubbs' ability, whom I have seen play, should put our local boy out of the running."

HERBERT JAQUES, president of Brookline Country Club:

"I am exceedingly sorry to hear of Ouimet's defeat, yet I did not expect him to go through the tournament. The changes in conditions no doubt had a bad effect on the youngster. Last year he played on our links, with which he was most familiar. Everything was in his favor. He had a home course, a home crowd to urge him on, and he did not have the nervousness which no doubt was a principal factor in his defeat in England today. The climate in England must have bothered him, too. On behalf of the Country Club I want to extend my congratulations to Mr. Tubbs, who must be a very clever player."

NOT A CONSISTENT PLAYER.

H. S. Burnell Tubbs, who vanquished Francis Ouimet in the English open championships, has engaged in local tournaments in England for a dozen years. Only an ordinary player, he has managed to win few of the minor tournaments there. He is what is described by golf experts as "a player of the best day ever seen on local links, but never a consistent player."

As one prominent local player who has seen Tubbs in action says: "Tubbs may go around the same course on Sunday that I do tomorrow. He was equipped with the same feeling of international rivalry as that which confronted Ouimet last year."

The Stonehill Club, which Tubbs represents, is in the south of England.

JOHN ANDERSON, Massachusetts State champion in 1907 and 1911:

"I did not eat my supper when I learned that Jerry Travers was beaten Monday, and I doubt if I eat my dinner today after learning of Francis' defeat today. It is a great shock to me. I really thought Ouimet would win the tournament. I am anxious to get further details of the match. The shock to me is all the greater when I learn that a man of Tubbs' ability, whom I have seen play, should put our local boy out of the running."

HERBERT JAQUES, president of Brookline Country Club:

"I am exceedingly sorry to hear of Ouimet's defeat, yet I did not expect him to go through the tournament. The changes in conditions no doubt had a bad effect on the youngster. Last year he played on our links, with which he was most familiar. Everything was in his favor. He had a home course, a home crowd to urge him on, and he did not have the nervousness which no doubt was a principal factor in his defeat in England today. The climate in England must have bothered him, too. On behalf of the Country Club I want to extend my congratulations to Mr. Tubbs, who must be a very clever player."

Brookline Expert Sorry to Hear of Champion's Loss

By HERBERT JAQUES,
President of Brookline Country Club

"I am exceedingly sorry to hear of Ouimet's defeat, yet I did not expect him to go through the tournament. The changes in conditions no doubt had a bad effect on the youngster. Last year he played on our links, with which he was most familiar. Everything was in his favor. He had a home course, a home crowd to urge him on, and he did not have the nervousness which no doubt was a principal factor in his defeat in England today. The climate in England must have bothered him, too. On behalf of the Country Club I want to extend my congratulations to Mr. Tubbs, who must be a very clever player."

G. HERBERT WINDEATT, chairman of the golf committee, Brookline C. C.:

"Too bad, too bad. I guess we Americans must pin our hopes on Chick Evans to win. Ouimet's defeat is a keen disappointment to me, but he is only a youngster and he will have a chance in the future to go after the title again. I know nothing of conditions at Sandwich, but from the account of Ouimet's work in the first round I felt that everything suited him."

"Francis is a clever boy and has a great future as a golfer. All I can say further is to congratulate the English golfer who put Ouimet out of the winning."

GEORGE WRIGHT, Ouimet's employer, of the firm of Wright & Ditson:

"I feel sorry for Ouimet. The young fellow had his heart bent on making a respectable showing in the big tournament. After his great showing on Monday when he showed the class of the field in his match I expected he would go a little farther in the tourney.

"I can't say I was certain that Francis would come out on top against those crack English players. He did his best and when he returns to the store to work I will be the first to congratulate him on the fact that he went as far as the second round."

TOM McNAMARA, present open golf champion of Massachusetts:

"It is hardly necessary for me to say that I am sorry. It has always been my contention that in any important golf tournament the Massachusetts golfers had hard luck from the start. The case of Ouimet he had an easy match to start with, and the first real test he faced was in the first round he [illegible] "The point I want to emphasize is that Ouimet [illegible] to start with and [illegible] to become indifferent [illegible] when he faced [illegible] opponent next day [illegible] suffered a setback."

JOHN MORRILL, of the firm of Wright & Ditson:

"Until we hear the full details of the match I don't care to comment on the match. Ouimet may have the better luck and then too both men may have form that [illegible] different [illegible] when they met Ouimet's defeat."

HARVARD EIGHT LOOKS GOOD FOR CORNELL RACE

The rejuvenated Harvard varsity held its second workout and displayed great form, which is an indication that Coach Wray has selected the right eight men for the Cornell race. Nevertheless the eight has got to improve more and more every day if it expects to make any kind of showing.

The varsity took its long row and paddle (all), went over the mile and seven-eighths course at a stroke averaging 31. It was just a paddle and no attempt was made for time, as it is too early to send this reconstructed eight over any time trial.

The boat spaced fairly well, although at times there was a noticeable checking, but if the crew improves as much as it is expected this ought to be done away with by the end of the week.

At present the shell is very unsteady with a tendency to lean over to starboard continually. This is to be expected, as most of the men are as yet unaccustomed to their new places and are probably not rigged according to their satisfaction. The rhythm, which was so important a factor in the "seconds," is beginning to find its way into the varsity boat.

Francis Ouimet, Brookline boy, who was eliminated from golf title play in England today, by losing to Tubbs, his English rival.

NAZARETH ACADEMY SUPERIOR PRAISES FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

In a recent letter the Mother Superior of Nazareth Academy says: "I have nothing except praise for Father John's Medicine. Several of the sisters have been taking it and all have been benefited by it." (Signed) Mother Antoinette, Nazareth Academy, Concordia, Kansas.

It is worth while knowing that Father John's Medicine is a safe medicine to take as a tonic and body builder, because it does not contain any alcohol or dangerous drugs, but is composed entirely of pure and wholesome, nourishing food elements, which build new flesh and strength. Children, as well as older people, find renewed health and strength from its use.

COBB SAYS "FED" HITS DUE TO LIVELY BALL

Written Expressly for the Boston American

By TY COBB.

Speaking of hitting, I reckon that some of us will have to jump to the Federals if our batting averages do not improve before long. The s[illegible] certainly looks like Utopia for the batters.

I noticed in the first set of official averages issued that twenty-seven men, [illegible] of the regulars other than pitchers, were swatting the ball for a figure of .300 or better, while fifty-two were above .[illegible]

There must be some sluggers in that outfit. Yet I find that a lot of the fence-busters are men who never were rated as anything better than mediocre clubs in the American or the National.

Doubtless many of the fancy hitting figures acquired in the first few games of the "Feds" season were due to the use of a lively ball. The new league either has already adopted a dead ball or will do so shortly, I understand, and then some of the great [illegible] will sink to where they belong. The pitching in that circuit cannot be very good either, and there are several shoo fences which helped pile up hot runs.

Too Lively a Ball Is Not Popular.

They tried that lively ball stuff in the American League three or four years ago and you can be sure that all the outfielders were glad when they succeeded in getting it out of the circulating sphere.

For the few weeks it existed [illegible] was the fellows at the suburban [illegible] were not to swallows should a [illegible] base hit. Any outfielder [illegible] all cripped up from being kicked in the shins with a [illegible] drive that [illegible] could get [illegible] on.

The public may want more batting, but it certainly doesn't care to see the ball [illegible] it is [illegible] are decided to [illegible] that they will like this [illegible] of the present ball. [illegible] balls seem to be about right to make the game interesting and I think that the "Feds" [illegible] as near like the present [illegible].

Talking [illegible] one of the [illegible] long ago [illegible] England got [illegible] trip and [illegible] teams that [illegible] couldn't have been [illegible] match which [illegible] before.

[illegible] seen that [illegible] of how the [illegible] said the Yankees to his British neighbor.

Oh, you can see it all right, old chap" said the Britisher. "What you can't understand is the [illegible] part of the [illegible] game. It hasn't really begun yet. I'm the best batter on the team, and I [illegible] don't go to bat [illegible] you'll be in plenty of time."

Not Enough Action in the Game of Cricket.

According to [illegible] Crawford, who went [illegible] with McGraw's and Comiskey's [illegible] English didn't seem to see as much in baseball, and kept [illegible] moaning sound of the fine points of cricket. It seems to me, however, that a game where you play three days and then [illegible] time for tea, and quit to run when you get a hit that [illegible] like something made for the American temperament.

We want [illegible] action in a hurry in our games. You [illegible] that if a pitcher makes three or four throws to first base to hold a runner on, the [illegible] will begin to get restless and [illegible] to "play ball."

Imagine [illegible] what they would do if the [illegible] to [illegible] with the same [illegible] time out, or it were to be [illegible] ball [illegible] when the [illegible] half over. There'd be [illegible] you live.

Some [illegible] other good one about the [illegible] who left the White [illegible] in London before [illegible] was asked by a [illegible] around when the [illegible] quit:

Chicago 10001010
New York. 20010000

"I don't know what it [illegible]," said the fellow [illegible] at the game to the other one. "But it was way up in the millions."

There seems to be a [illegible] fusion this season over the [illegible] prohibiting the coaches at [illegible] from putting his hands [illegible] ber. Several managers [illegible] up over the addition to the [illegible] forbidding coaches and players [illegible] interpreted it.

The rule distinctly says that the runner is out if the [illegible] touches base holds or shoves him, but both [illegible] is said about first. Over in Cleveland, early in the season, Bill Bingham, who was coaching at [illegible] took hold of a runner and [illegible] back on that bag. The umpire said he was working against the rules, and nobody on the field was [illegible] enough with the rule to know [illegible] a mistake had not been made.

The man wasn't out, of course, as the play didn't come up at all, but Cleveland lost a run by virtue of the bad ruling, for [illegible] was [illegible] able to quote the exact working of the code, so he wouldn't put up a holler.

It hardly seems possible that a veteran umpire and [illegible] would have read the rules to [illegible] themselves with the [illegible] in this case it was plain that neither had done so.

Perhaps a course of instruction in the playing code is [illegible] for some big leaguers, for every now and then something like this comes up to show that the boys do not get very well acquainted with that literature.

RED SOX OUT TO MAKE IT FOUR STRAIGHT OVER THE DETROIT TIGERS

DEFIANCE ON TRIP TODAY TO MARBLEHEAD

By HARRY C. THOMAS.

The cup class boat Defiance, owing to some delay in getting all the work finished, will not leave Bath, Me., until this morning and will not arrive at Marblehead until tomorrow.

The reception, which was to have been held at the Eastern Yacht Club-House this afternoon, will not take place until tomorrow and will be informal, just time enough being allowed to inspect the big mahogany racing craft.

After considerable discussion, Designer Owen and the managing director of the syndicate, George M. Pynchon of New York, have decided to remove the big brass head of the bowsprit of the Defiance and a mahogany plug has been substituted. There was some question raised about the brass headpiece being rather a dangerous proposition and Owen and Pynchon decided not to take any chances.

The rowboat called for under the racing rules has been hushed on the deck of the Defiance and today the work of getting everything ready for the long tow up the coast and around Cape Cod to the Sound was being hurried.

Work placing the deck fittings on the big bronze boat Vanitie is almost completed, and a large force of workmen are hustling on the spars at the Lawley plant at Neponset.

VANITIE A DAZZLER.

The Vanitie in the sunlight is dazzling to the eye. When the sun strikes any part of the burnished bronze body of the boat, it is hard work to keep the eyes on it.

From reports coming from Bristol, R. I., "Bob" Emmons and Charles Francis Adams, 2d, are driving the rig of the Resolute at most severe test. No attempts have been made to try the other step for the mast but the sail has been cut down and it now looks like a good-sized blow once will be received from both the Defiance and Vanitie. It is believed that when the results of the first three boats have been figured, the Defiance and Vanitie will stand about even, and that both will have to go outside time to the Herreshoff boat.

The chance of the rig of the Resolute during the last week is taken to mean in some quarters this:

That under the first rig of the sail that was tried, the Resolute, although showing remarkable speed, was not considered fast enough to hold what time she might get from the Defiance or Vanitie, and a shorter rig would sail for still more time.

TRIAL NEAR GREENWICH.

The reputation of Herreshoff has always been to get the boat under sail as soon as possible and then find out just what sort of rig it needs. The change of anything from a mast to a sail and the comments attended thereto from various sources, mean as much to Nat Herreshoff as the blowing out of a tire does to an automobile racer. Just the time it takes to fix it is all that it amounts to.

Herreshoff never comments about the boats to anyone but the owners and he has learned by now not to ask that he might hear about the rain.

His motto has always been "I am not to win and if the first arrangement won't do I will change it."

It will be some days before the canvas will be able to leave Neponset and considerable of a hustle will have to be made to get the boat to the starting line on June 5, the date of the first race. Although Glen Cove is given as the place for the first of the thirty-five trial races, as it is the location of the New York Yacht Club station, the racers will be sailed somewhere in the vicinity of Greenwich, Conn.

Prentiss MacFarland will deliver an oration before the Newman Club of B. R. post in the Town Hall, on Sunday, May 24, at 8 p. m.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

NOW IS THE FEDERAL LEAGUE going? President James A. Gilmore was asked. "We have about three Baltimore and Chicago," was the reply of the leader.

BRIEF MATHEWSON'S WORK IN HIS previous with the Reds will not be all he will get away from the management of the Cincinnati club.

OUTFIELDER JOHN TITUS, THE Kansas who was hit on the head recently with a batted ball, returning his removal to a hospital, has recovered sufficiently to resume playing with the Kansas City team.

WHITE SOX PLAYERS ARE INCLINED to the belief that Harry Lord will change his was shod relying after he has been away from the game for a few days. There is a report that he is thinking of joining the Feds but it is hardly to wonder a new form contract that would be impossible.

MANAGER CHARLES DOOIN HAS BEEN forced to move Johnny Hummel to play shortstop for the Phillies but there is the reward to make a deal. Dooin is not willing to get rid of Lobert, the veteran infielder.

THE CHICAGO JUMP TO THE FEDS only one thousand Nam tried to send him to the Federal and A. Dean has signed the club owners. They are afraid to release a player to the Federals for fear he could, as Tinker does, that a contract is invariably used jump to the Feds.

WALTER CRUSE, THE SENSATIONAL outfielder of the St. Louis Cardinals, can play the Federal League for the remainder of the season if he wishes. Cruse deserted to the Feds during the opening trip to Boston and joined the team at Baltimore and Buffalo. He has been playing a fine game.

A WAR A LONG TIME BETWEEN WINS for Reese—from May 8 to May 18.

COBB'S FOUR HITS HAVE BEEN MADE off Vaughn of the Cubs, in his last eight appearances. Joe Brooklyn and Phillies were victims.

CLEAN SWEEP OVER TIGERS IS RED SOX PLAN

At times Ty Cobb was hurt in the third inning of yesterday's game, his injury is not bad enough to keep him out of the lineup, and he will take his place in centre field when time is called for the fourth and final battle between the Tigers and Red Sox at the Fenway Park this afternoon.

The Red Sox will strive hard to make a clean-up of the series, and with "Smoky" Leonard performing on the mound, everything points to a fourth victory. Leonard pitched three innings of yesterday's game, but, as he is a glutton for work, Carrigan will undoubtedly send him back against the Tigers today.

There is also a slight possibility that Joe Wood may pitch for the Sox. A third bet would be young Coumbe, whom Carrigan may decide to use because he is a left-hander, and the southpaws are generally effective against the Detroiters.

George Dauss seems to be the choice of Jennings to do the pitching for Detroit, while Hall will be held in reserve in case of emergency. When going right Dauss is one of the most dangerous pitchers in Ban Johnson's circuit, and it's a sure bet that he'll work his head off to prevent a four-game slide.

The Red Sox are beginning to find their batting eyes, at least, as their six-run scoring spree in the ninth inning up this good work it won't be long before the Carrigan crew will be at or pretty close to the top of the heap.

Baseball Injuries Cause Two Deaths

MORRISTOWN, N. J., May 20.—When the body of Nelson A. Kerr, a seventeen-year-old boy, was brought to his home here from Green's pond lake, it became known that he had died after staggering off a baseball field yesterday. The victim of a pitched ball. The ball struck him in the head. The lad had gone to Greenwood Lake with a Sunday school party.

WICHITA, Kan., May 20.—William P. Lewis, nineteen years old, baseball player of Conway Springs, Kan., is dead here from an injury he received in a game two weeks ago.

"The Katzenjammer Kids" will be back again next Sunday in the Comic Section of the Sunday AMERICAN. Hans and Fritz, der Captain, Mrs. Katzenjammer and the Professor are funnier than ever. Order next Sunday's AMERICAN now.

Allis Again Harvard Golfing Champion

E. P. Allis has again captured the individual golf championship of Harvard at the Cambridge links, defeating C. B. Weeks in the final thirty-six hole match, 6 up and 5 to play.

In the play of the previous day, Allis led at the end of eighteen holes by a score of 2 up.

The Harvard team will play the Country Club team in Brookline tomorrow. The Harvard team, besides Allis, will consist of F. Sargent Griffiths, P. W. Simons, J. G. Hoburn and J. W. Hubbell.

BRAVES AFTER VICTORY TODAY OVER PIRATES

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 20.—With the series standing at all the Pittsburgh and Brooklyn clubs both having one victory to their credit, Manager Stallings's team is going to jump on Manager Clarke's men with all the power it can muster in the game today. Stallings has his best pitcher ready for the occasion, and while the Pirate boss has not announced who will start for the Brooklyn team, Cheney and Coumbe are both due after the latter has seen to rest between innings.

Both teams were batting strong in yesterday's game, Crutcher who started on that mound for the Braves being knocked out of the box, as was McQuillan.

Rindge Crew Winner Over Tech on Charles

The Rindge Tech four-oared crew defeated the Technology crew in a race over a length of open water, one-mile match race on the Charles. The time was 4.59 minutes.

The crews sat in the following order: Rindge—Regan (coxswain), Walter Coleman 2, Arthur Coleman, bow, and Ellis Conway. Tech—M. Donald (coxswain), Dunning, Tosso, bow, and Carle, stroke.

Ruth Partridge to Lead Wellesley Oars

Miss Ruth G. Partridge '15, of Mansfield, Mass., has been elected head of rowing at Wellesley college for the next school year. She will succeed Miss Edith Frost '14, captain of the crew. Miss Partridge has been one of the best oarswomen Wellesley has had for several years. She will be assisted by Miss Adams, captain of the crew, and Miss Wright, coxswain of the crew. Miss Partridge is also showing a well-rounded ability in other sports.

Adams to Join Feds.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 20.—Manager Gilmore, president of the Baltimore Baseball Club, announced that Joseph Adams, star pitcher of the Washington Club, would join his team in Brooklyn tomorrow.

Being Eighteen

Pretty and Eighteen, and Tryin' to Stay Single Is a Tight-Rope Performance.

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service

IT'S a bit of a job—to walk the tight-rope from eighteen to twenty—when the girl in the story has a fresh, sweet face, the light, fine step and the round arms and neck of babyhood still on her, a gift of pretty chatter that makes even the sour-heart that knocks her smile behind the scowl, a warm heart and a grand. The way of chumming with man or dog or girl, light-footed, light-handed, light-hearted ("and light-headed," think you, perhaps). Yes, sure, but then youth goes to a fellow's head, you know; you, too, were drunk with youth when you were travelling the dizzy way from eighteen to twenty. And when you babbled like a small and shallow brook, whose golden bottom in all clear and plain to the eye of the passerby, whose flow is as deep only as your forefinger—and did most unwise things, and laughed out at the blue sky over nothing at all . . . it was the strong, sweet wine of Youth in your pretty head! All things reach and lean to eighteen—and beauty! As a plant in the window lifts leaves and flower-faces to the sun. The boy, her own age, yearns for her, follows her, dreams of her, and, fired with adoration, makes verses that Launcelot Du Lake of the swinging red-gold hair would not be ashamed to own. The fat boy—four years younger—forgets his supper for her sake! Twenty-nine, long-legged and wiry, hustling, and strong of chin and shoulder, falls hard and far, and opening his arms, sings, "Oh, girl who can sing and dance and laugh, fall into my heart!" The scholar, with the world of men and women laid open before his cool, calm eyes, and a little pet belief that his heart is as cold as a reef in the sea, and a leaning for "brainy" women, loses his heart and his calculating head to the Mademoiselle "Twixt Eighteen and Twenty." Even her father's old friend, almost as old as he is, and who ought to know better, closes his grey hair and dares to lift his weary eyes to slim girlhood.

So what their numbers, their verses, their dream-weaving, their coaxing, their silver tongues, tipped with romance, their loving, the open arms of all mankind spread below her, it's a pretty neat bit of balancing when a maid, Eighteen to Twenty, and peach-pretty, gets by to the solid bank of twenty-one —unmarried.

And then, too, you see, Love's been fiddling madly on the rope—and a maid's heart is warm and quick!

CHAPTER FIVE.

Twenty Years After

TWENTY years have passed and Felix Hartley has not lived to expiate his supposed crime. The strain had been too much for him and after five years of penal servitude he had passed away one morning in his cell. Mrs. Hartley, too, clinging to life until Ethel was old enough to fight her own way in the world, had at last followed her husband, and the Hartley counterfeiting affair had finally become a thing of the past.

Ethel Hartley, slim and dark and lovely, had been trained in one of the best schools the city afforded, and had recently graduated, a competent stenographer. One morning armed with a letter of recommendation, she presented herself at one of the largest business houses in the city and asked for a position.

"I have a letter here for Mr. Rogers," she said, drawing an envelope from her bag, "perhaps you will be kind enough to take it to him." And then she smiled, and when Ethel smiled and asked a favor at the same time, there was no resisting her, and the man departed for the inner sanctum, where Stephen Rogers had taken up his father's business, ruling the establishment with a rule of iron and making himself highly unpopular with all who came in contact with him.

"So," he said, glancing over the note, "what does she look like, Phil? Well, don't stand there staring at me. I asked you a question, why don't you answer?"

"Well, I was trying to think, sir," stammered the man. "Very pretty, I should say, with a smile." And the man grinned at the recollection of the smile she had given him a moment ago.

"Well, what are you grinning at; get out of here and send her on in. I suppose I might as well have a talk with her," growled Rogers, and the man hastily departed and a moment later ushered Ethel in with much ceremony.

"Good morning," said Rogers suavely, noting the slim loveliness of the girl and the firm soft curve of her up-tilted little chin. "You come highly recommended from my friend, Mr. Bennett, would you like a position here with us?"

"Very much," said Ethel, raising her eyes to his suddenly. He started. What an extraordinary girl to be earning her living as a typewriter and stenographer. It might be rather pleasant to have her around, and with a few more questions he told her she could begin work immediately.

Ethel began work on a very generous salary, but there was something about Rogers' attitude that vaguely troubled her. When he came into the office to see her about some work she leaned as far away from him as possible, and yet it seemed that he was uncomfortably near, and his perpetual smile for her, while he raved and stormed at every one else in the establishment, savored of a partiality that she did not relish.

One morning the office boy brought her a note which proved to be a brief command from her employer. She was to report immediately at Arsdeley, where Rogers had his Summer home, and work was to go on just as if they were in the office in town.

At Arsdeley Stephen Rogers seemed to have adopted a different attitude toward Ethel. There was courtesy in his manner, nothing more, and outside of business hours he was impersonally friendly. One day he asked her if she would care to go for a ride in the big touring car, and on the way they stopped at one of the tenant houses to collect the rent. Ethel watched the expression on an old man's face as he confessed that he did not have the rent ready and timidly asked for a few days' grace, so small a favor could not be refused. But Rogers, with his accustomed savagery, thundered out a "no," and it would have gone hard with old Martin if Ethel, with a courage born of the friendliness of the last few days, had not interfered and begged for mercy. Rogers gave in immediately, and they drove home almost in silence, Ethel covered with embarrassment and hardly knowing what to say, while Rogers sat in moody thought.

That night, Rogers coming upon Ethel unexpectedly on the terrace overlooking the river, suddenly seized her in his arms. Again all her old fear swept over her, and she struggled wildly, beating upon his breast with small impotent fists. He laughed at her efforts and only held her closer, and then almost as quickly as he had come, he released her, and with a little moan of pain she sank breathlessly down upon the stone seat.

How Actresses Remove Superfluous Hair

They generally use El Rado, the liquid hair remover. It is absolutely infallible in its effect, and positively painless. This is proved conclusively by the fact that many physicians use the ingredients in El Rado for exactly the same purpose—hair removing. A few drops of simple application, and any growths vanish. You see only the skin, smooth and velvety, even whiter than before, because of the soothing, antiseptic ingredients in the preparation. Get a 50c or $1.00 bottle today. Test it on your arm. Proves for yourself it will do everything claimed. Your money back if you are not entirely pleased. If inconvenient to call at your druggist's it will be sent direct from the Pilgrim Mfg. Thin Folks Who Would Be Fat

Increase in Weight 10 Pounds or More

"I'd certainly give most anything to be able to fat up a few pounds and stay that way," declares every excessively thin man or woman. Such result is not impossible, despite past failures. Thin people are victims of mal-nutrition, a condition which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are when the powers of nutrition are normal. Instead of getting into the blood all the fat and flesh producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy, normal amount of fat the nutritive processes must be artificially supplied with the power which nature has denied them. This can best be accomplished by eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is a scientific combination of six of the most effective elements known to the medical profession. Taken with meals, it mixes with the food to turn the sugars and starches into rich, ripe nourishment for the tissues, and blood, and its rapid effect is remarkable. Reported gains of from ten to twenty-five pounds in a single month are by no means infrequent. Yet its action is perfectly natural and absolutely harmless. Sargol is sold by good druggists everywhere, and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Note—While Sargol has produced remarkable results in the treatment of nervous Indigestion and general stomach disorders, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh producing effect, be used by those who are not willing to increase their weight ten

Beatrice Fairfax Writes on

The Price of Popularity

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

IS there a short-cut to popularity? No. But there is a safe highroad that will lead you there.

Charm and magnetism are things that no amount of taking thought will enable you to cultivate. Beauty is a gift that comes from the gods—when it exists it can be guarded and improved as any flower may be cultivated. When it is absent, cleanliness and health and good taste may enable one to produce a fairly satisfactory "something just as good."

But popularity is possible without the aid of the lieutenants of magnetism of charm, of brilliancy or of beauty.

No one is born to be liked or disliked. There is no decree of fate that one has to accept and bear as well as possible whether it works the right or wrong way.

Any girl can work out her salvation and make the other girls she knows ashamed to think what they did with their advantages when they beheld her overcoming a handicap of plain looks, poor taste in dressing, and no flashing brilliancy of mind.

Dispose first of the trifles that count just as headlines in a story count. Have your head-dress attractive to the eye. Study dress. Don't wear the fad of the moment; don't wear just what you want; but be sure that you are modifying style so that your clothes look as if they liked you—as if they honestly wanted to drape your body. Fresh air and simple food and sane hours will aid in keeping your complexion clear. Hair that is shampooed will fall in soft becoming fluffiness about your face. Attend to those "head-lines" first—so that you will attract the eye like a promising looking index to a book or colorful magazine cover.

Think what other people want of you and of life. This will give you sympathy and there is no single quality in all the world that will set you further along the high-road to popularity. People will make a confidant of you and men, women and children unconsciously come to love the person to whom they dare reveal their hearts and feelings.

If you can learn to laugh you will have advanced another step on the road to popularity. Look on the bright side of things so that you can bring a bit of cheer to the worst pessimist you know. Don't force your good spirits on people, like the man on shipboard, who asked the woman who had been seasick all the way to Gibraltar if she had ever known a smoother crossing. Sympathy will tell you when to laugh—and a clear, ringing laugh of good will is going to make up for a vast lack of Cleopatra-like charm!

Everything lies in the power of a girl who has the grit to make the most of herself. It takes a lot of "the infinite capacity for taking pains" to win popularity.

Deserves every little thing. Don't presume on your looks, or your family, or your money, or your position, or your cleverness to bring you social success.

When you have earned your popularity you will discover that you have won the thing that human nature craves most in all the world. The great secret of popularity is to win it. And the great jewel of popularity is this:

To be popular is to be loved. And love is the one thing that all human nature craves supremely. So whatever of effort is the price of popularity, is it not well worth paying?

Skin tortures will yield to Resinol

IF you have eczema, ringworm or other itching, burning, unsightly skin eruptions, try Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap and see how quickly the itching stops and the trouble disappears, even in severe, stubborn cases. Resinol Ointment is also an excellent household remedy for pimples, dandruff, sores, burns, wounds, boils, and for a score of other uses where a soothing, healing application is needed.

Resinol contains nothing of a harsh or injurious nature and can be used with confidence on the tenderest or most irritated surface. Practically every druggist sells Resinol Ointment (50c and $1), and Resinol Soap (25c). For trial free, write to Dept. 15-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md. Avoid worthless imitations.

It's the cleanest feeling soap there is. Why?

Treat yourself to a good scrub with Lifebuoy Health Soap. You'll say you never felt so clean before.

There's something else in Lifebuoy besides its wonderful cleansing power and its full, rich, creamy lather—and that is protection.

Lifebuoy destroys the chief source of many diseases—the germs of which get into the pores with every particle of dust, soot and grime.

Ordinary soap can't do that. The odor of Lifebuoy proves that it can, and does.

Be clean; be protected; watch your skin improve and your complexion clear up and glow with radiant health.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

Electric vehicle matters were gone into at considerable length on the first of the two days' convention of the New England section of the Electric Vehicle Association, which was inaugurated at the Engineers' Club yesterday morning. Men thoroughly conversant with the several branches of the industry discussed the problem from various standpoints. Many of the papers presented were decidedly interesting, not only to the maker and salesman, but likewise to those who use electric vehicles for either commercial or pleasure purposes.

At the close of the morning session, which was devoted entirely to business, the delegates visited the new Edison service station, where they had the pleasure of seeing one of the best appointed and most up-to-date electrical equipments to be found in this country. They were loud in their praise of the same. President Edgar and General Manager Atkins, who entertained the visitors, found them most appreciative of the plant. A beefsteak dinner was served in the service station and the evening was spent in listening to additional papers on matters pertaining to the electrical industry.

This morning a short business discussion will be held and then the annual outing will be enjoyed. Arrangements having been made for the entertainment of the visitors at Dan Point, Nahant.

W. H. Stevens, Eastern distributor of the National, entertained a party of his friends at his camp yesterday afternoon and evening.

Motor truck owners and attorneys who specialize on laws pertaining to motor-driven vehicles are of the opinion that the motor truck license bill which passed the House of Representatives for a third reading on Monday will be declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of this State. The bill requires the owner of a motor truck to pay a fee of $5 for each ton. The Supreme Courts of three States have already decided that this form of license is illegal.

Alarming Death Rate From CANCER

75,000 die yearly, of this number about 30,000 from cancer of stomach and liver, 12,000 of the uterus; 10,000 of the intestines and 5,000 of the breast. Statistics show that 1 in 8 die cancer rate in Massachusetts rose from 42 to 85.

If you have a lump or sore in the breast, face, lip or on any part of the body, don't neglect it once, or send for symptom blank and 76-page book. It tells how a new and home treatment is by absorption, and that it is successful is proven by hundreds of testimonials.

Back Up the Governor—Reorganize the Board of Health

The AMERICAN has for three years by editorials and news articles insisted that the Board of Health should be reorganized and that its chief officer should receive adequate compensation and give his whole time to his problems. Now the Governor has reached the same conclusion from his own independent consideration.

His message submitting a bill for the reorganization of the Board of Health presents a very strong appeal on a very appealing subject. As the Governor says:

"There should be no half measures in the fight for better public health conditions. This is a clear case where the best is none too good and it is believed that the passage of this bill will make it possible for Massachusetts to adopt all the latest modern methods of health conservation and possess the strongest and best health department in the country."

The bill is best described in the Governor's own language:

"This proposed legislation calls for the abolition of the State Board of Health and requires the appointment of a State Health Commissioner, who shall be directly responsible to the Governor. A Public Health Council is created, but following out modern beliefs in effective administrative work, this council has no administrative or executive powers.

"Provision is also made in this bill that the district health officers be required to give their entire services to the Commonwealth and that the present unsatisfactory arrangement be discontinued, namely, health officers half paid and expected merely to give such time as they choose in their respective districts to this work.

"Your especial attention is invited to the creation of three new divisions, one dealing with infant and child hygiene, the second with communicable diseases, and the third an administrative department for educational and publicity work. The need for special activities in the prevention of infant mortality is evidenced by the fact that in Massachusetts in 1912, out of a total of 52,250 deaths, 12,273 were under two years of age. It is well recognized that many of these infant deaths are preventable, and an active division of the State Department of Health should do much to cut down this enormous wastage of life.

"Similarly the tuberculosis problem is of great magnitude, even though noteworthy decreases in its mortality rate have been apparent in the past; 5,151 citizens of Massachusetts succumbed to this disease alone in 1912, or almost 10 per cent. of the total mortality.

"It is necessary that proper publicity work, especially by the State co-operating with local health authorities, be undertaken to bring before the people the simple facts, which they must know if they are to avoid contracting an unnecessary sickness. This important function is required in the proposed reorganization."

If the Governor should accomplish no more in his administration than to bring our Board of Health up to the highest standard of efficiency, his services to the State would yet be notable.

Help Give Crippled Children an Automobile Holiday

Crippled childhood, the mockery of youth, asks the ear of the people of Boston and everybody else in New England. The Boston Automobile Dealers' Association is planning to take 2,000 little ones of defective physique on an annual outing. Last year 1,500 rode under its auspices to Nantasket and it was a sunshine day in that many young lives.

To take 2,000 this year, 700 automobiles will be needed. The association is able to loan 300 cars and will also subscribe money for the hire of others and to provide crippled children with dinner and such a holiday that afflicted tots seldom have. More funds and about 400 automobiles are needed to make this year's outing, which will be at Nantasket Beach on Wednesday, June 10, a success.

Everybody who subscribes or lends a car will contribute a day of joy to some child or children deserving of all the sympathy and kindness there can be in the world. It will be putting a deposit in the Bank of Heaven!

Letters from American Readers

FROM SPECIAL JUSTICE AHEARN, Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I was glad to read your editorial on the bill which would relieve a plaintiff from the necessity of proving due care of his deceased intestate where a death was caused by the negligence of another person.

I introduced this bill last year when I was a Representative from the Nineteenth Suffolk District and got the House to pass the same, but it was defeated in the Senate.

In fact my original bill went further than death cases and provided that the burden in every case of showing the want of due care on the part of the plaintiff should be upon the defendant. This is the rule not only in the United States courts, as your editorial points out but in the great majority of our State courts, and in the courts of England.

And your editorial might well state that it is not only as just rule in death cases, but a logical rule and supported by the great weight of authority.

In fact, Massachusetts is one of a small minority of about ten States that still adheres to the illogical doctrine which places the "burden of proof" of the plaintiff's due care upon the plaintiff instead of compelling the defendant to prove that the plaintiff was contributorily negligent.

The rule of logic, as well as that supported by the great weight of authority aforesaid, is that the presumption of due care should remain with both the plaintiff and defendant, and that the plaintiff, in order to recover, must prove that the defendant was careless and likewise the defendant, in order to prevail, must prove that the plaintiff was contributorily negligent.

In death cases, as your editorial well points out, the logic and the justice of the rule advocated by my bill is conspicuously obvious.

I trust, therefore, that the Senate will this year see the wisdom of enacting this humane and just piece of legislation, and your paper is to be congratulated upon helping to produce this result, as, indeed, it is frequently entitled to the thanks of the people for its valuable support in many other instances.

Trusting that the above information may be of some value to you in your efforts to influence our honorable Senate, I have the honor to be, Yours very sincerely,

TIMOTHY J. AHERN.

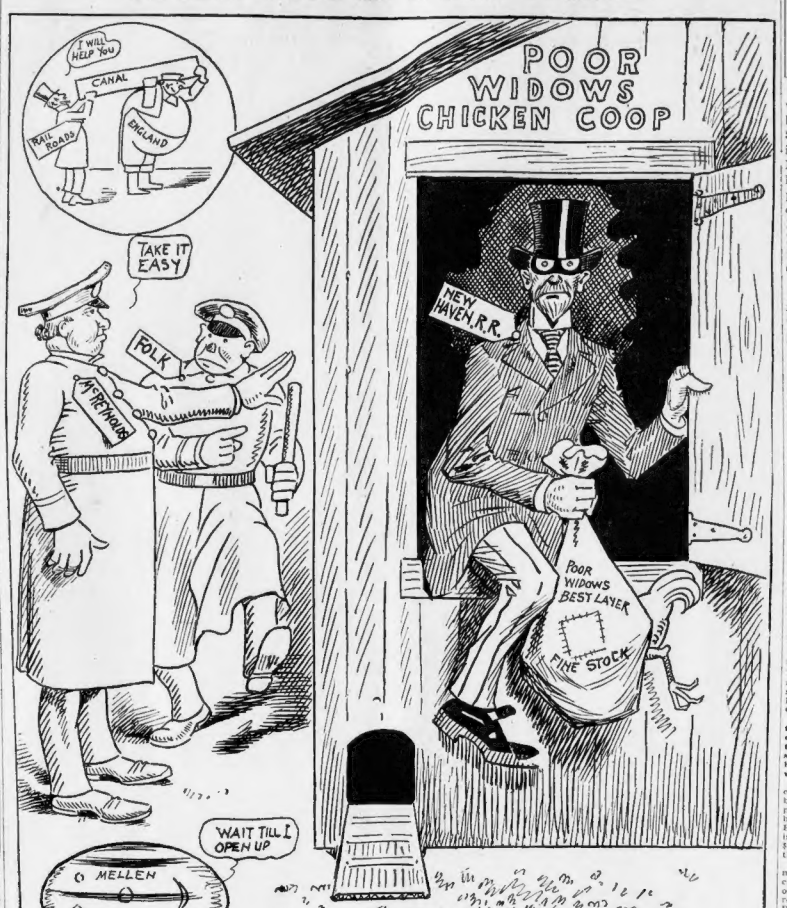
HALT! STAND BACK THERE!



A Film History of the Universe Would Be Both Possible and Marvelous—Material Must, of Course, Come from Students

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

MANY things are made plain by motion pictures which cannot be so well comprehended in any other way.

It would be possible, by taking photographs of a growing plant at intervals of a few hours, or a few days, and then passing them in swift succession through a lantern, so as to throw them in a continuous series on a screen, to SEE the plant develop as if its history were concentrated into the space of a few minutes.

This principle being understood, it is easy in imagination to represent the growth of the earth as if its hundred million years or more of history were concentrated into an hour or two. In this way one may get a wonderfully clear conception of the great facts of geology and astronomy.

Let us suppose that we were in possession of a series of pictures of the earth taken a thousand years apart, and extending backward indefinitely into geological time. Let us also suppose that these pictures could be run through a cinematograph lantern at the rate of sixteen per second, so that as with ordinary motion pictures, they would blend indistinguishably each dissolving into its successor.

The consequence would be that we should behold 16,000 years of the earth's history passing before our eyes every second, and in the space of about two hours the moving spectacle would present to us an animated panorama of all the geological revolutions that our planet has undergone in the course of one hundred and fifteen million years!

But you may ask: "How are we to get these pictures, even in an imaginative forms?"

They must, of course, be supplied by the studies of geologists, who find in the rocks, and in analogies drawn from the conditions of other worlds studied by astronomers, materials with which it is possible to construct a more or less detailed history of our globe. There can be no doubt that, in their main outlines, the pictures of the remote past thus supplied by geology are very good representations of what once really existed. As we read about them in books they are presented separately to our minds' eye, and we do not get from them a lively sense of the ceaseless changes by which they have been affected.

But with our imaginary cinematograph geology springs to life, and the earth itself becomes like a living thing! Sixteen thousand years of vicissitudes being concentrated into a single second, the very rocks appear to flow like water! The mountains rise like exhalations and shift their forms, and dissolve and pass away like clouds! The Colorado River carves its mighty canyon through the solid strata of the rocks as swiftly as a stream of hot water cutting a cleft in a cake of ice! The work of nature's forces during a million years passes before us in a single minute.

The hills rise and sink like waves, and the valleys are as the agitated troughs of the sea.

The continents heave up their granite backs and stretch forth and retract their pebbly shores, and play with the enveloping deep, which now swells up and submerges them and now sinks into its profundities and bares their hidden borders. Not for an instant is the earth at rest. Not for a minute do its features remain unchanged.

Man, judging by the experiences of his ephemeral existence, imagines that the dry lands and the seas were fixed in their places by an unalterable decree at the beginning of the earth's history. But our geological motion pictures shows them continually interchanging places.

"Twenty times in the short period represented by one of our geological epochs," says the great French geologist, De Launay, "the place occupied by Paris has been covered by the waves of the sea, only to emerge again. There is not a spot on our globe which may not, like Atlantis, be invaded by the ocean, after having been inhabited, for a moment, by terrestrial beings."

And again he says: "The bottom of the ocean is that laboratory where future continents are elaborated (worked out), as well as the tomb wherein are preserved, like mummies, old continents that have disappeared."

It is only necessary to reflect a little upon such statements in order to construct for oneself cinematographic films covering the past ages of creation, the exhibition of which, by the accelerating stereopticon of the imagination, will show a motion picture wherein the earth becomes an actor infinitely more changeable than Harlequin.

ISN'T IT ABOUT TIME FOR W. S. McNARY TO DO SOME EXPLAINING?

Business men and politicians were alike asking today if William S. McNary, chairman of the State Harbor and Land Commission and member of the Board of Directors for the port of Boston, has nothing to say to the people of Massachusetts on the discovery at Washington that in 1912 he sold to the New Haven Railroad for $1,500 his "opinions" about the coming of the Grand Trunk to Boston.

In November of that year, as a port director, McNary was telling Bostonians, officially, that the abandonment of the Grand Trunk enterprise would prove beneficial to Boston.

The sentiment is growing that a statement is about due from Mr. McNary on the Byrnes testimony at Washington and that, unless such a statement clarifies the present atmosphere, Mr. McNary may be a heavy load for the Walsh administration in November.

Evidence unearthed today indicates that in the Grand Trunk-New Haven matter, McNary was an exceedingly busy cog of ice.

Mr. McNary, who advised Vice-President Timothy E. Byrnes about the coming of the Grand Trunk, and who collected either $1,000 or $1,500 for the advice, was described by Byrnes last week on the witness stand at Washington as a "New Haven absorber."

McNary "wasn't a New Haven man," Vice-President Byrnes said, "in any sense of the word."

Q. (By Joseph W. Folk, counsel for the Interstate Commerce Commission.) —A New Haven absorber? A.—(By Byrnes)—Absorber? Well, he absorbed that $1,000 evidently. (Laughter.)

Mr. Folk—That is what I mean.

MAYHAP A VOLUNTEER.

Men who dig into the newspaper files today declare that former Vice-President Byrnes owes McNary an apology. Mr. McNary, as has been said before, was a remarkably busy little cup of tea in the matter of the Grand Trunk and the New Haven.

Running all through the examination of Dough Boy Byrnes by Governor Folk there somehow appears the suggestion that McNary got something for nothing; that he didn't belong to the Byrnes regulars, but was only a volunteer.

William S. McNary is today the chairman of the Massachusetts Harbor and Land Commission, a $3,500 position, to which he was elevated by former Governor Eugene N. Foss. By virtue of that office Mr. McNary is also a member—at an additional $1,000 per annum—of the Directors of the port of Boston.

At the time of the Grand Trunk movement, Mr. McNary was politically disengaged. Some years previously he had been one of Boston's representatives to Congress. Dough Boy Byrnes has testified that McNary was "a clerk in a furniture store." The fact is that McNary was one of the owners of the furniture house of Drake & Hersey.

It is also a fact that Mr. McNary spoke up promptly and enthusiastically for the New Haven Railroad when the New Haven Railroad needed champions.

When Morgan pulled the international banking strings which jerked the Grand Trunk Railway away from the port of Boston, there was a public protest, which finally resulted in the indictment of Charles S. Mellen in the United States Court for an alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

William Sarsfield McNary was on the job at about that time, however, with a statement that the agreement entered into by the New Haven and the Grand Trunk was going to prove highly beneficial to Boston.

And it is highly significant that McNary, when he made this statement —having some months before on the testimony of Byrnes "absorbed" $1,000 or $1,500 of New Haven money —was one of the directors of the port of Boston and a member of the Harbor and Land Commission.

This was about the middle of November, in the year 1912. Charles J. Hubbard and the late David O. Ives had hurried to Montreal as the representatives of the Chamber of Commerce to learn from President Chamberlin of the Grand Trunk exactly what Boston and New England were to understand from the report that the Grand Trunk had stopped work on its proposed extensions to Providence and Boston.

Messrs Hubbard and Ives were back in Boston with a lengthy report, in which they said, in part:

Mr. Chamberlin stated that no agreement has yet been reached between the Grand Trunk and the New Haven Railroad. IF SUCH BE THE CASE, THE LATTER COMPANY PROBABLY HAS BRIEFLY THE VERY POWERFUL INFLUENCE TO BEAR.

Our visit has convinced us that the Grand Trunk, while desirous of affording favorable facilities to attract to their rails a fair share of the valuable business of New England, has made up its mind, for the present at least, to accept in that territory a very subordinate position.

New England was in a turmoil. Chamberlin was on his way to New York for a conference with Mellen. Protests were already in the hands of George W. Wickersham, Mr. Taft's Attorney-General.

And now appeared William S. McNary, in the public prints, with fifteen reasons why the thing had to be, and why it was going to be a good things for Boston.

The Balkan war, McNary said, had made it impossible to get funds in New England or Canada.

The Palmer-Providence road, McNary said, would in all probability be built in the Spring.

The line from White River Junction to Boston, McNary said, would not be built, because the Grand Trunk couldn't raise the necessary millions.

The Borden administration in Canada, McNary said, favored the Canadian Pacific rather than the Grand Trunk.

In nine chapters following, Mr. McNary told what the New Haven Railroad had decided to do for the Grand Trunk. And these chapters of his statement carried with them quite such an air of assurance as might have been expected from one who had sat in with Morgan and the British bankers when the cards were dealt. Listen to this, from Mr. McNary, in November, 1912, when he was one of the Massachusetts Harbor and Land Commissioners and a director of the port of Boston, some months after he had taken $1,500 of New Haven money:

6—That the New Haven and Boston & Maine systems will give to the Grand Trunk either traffic facilities over its lines to Boston, or trackage facilities by which the Grand Trunk can send business to Boston or to other New England points, either over the New Haven and Boston & Maine roads in the cars of the New Haven-Maine system or can run its own trains with its own motive power, its own cars and its own crews to Boston, and its own freight trains to the Boston terminals at Charlestown and South Boston, if the Grand Trunk Railroad so desires, and for such terms of years as the Grand Trunk desires also.

"PEACE PROCLAMATION."

And bringing to an end his Proclamation of Railroad Peace, Mr. McNary made these significant declarations:

THAT BOTH THE GRAND TRUNK AND THE NEW HAVEN R. & M. SYSTEMS HAS ASSURED THE PORT DIRECTORS THAT THEY WILL CO-OPERATE HEARTILY IN THE PROSPECTIVE DEVELOPMENT OF THE PORT OF BOSTON, AND THAT THE GRAND TRUNK WILL BE ENABLED TO GIVE AS GOOD SERVICE TO THE CITY OF BOSTON AS IF IT HAD ITS OWN RAILS INTO THE CITY.

That the present situation should be considered fairly and squarely by the people, the press and the public, and ACCORDING TO THE FACTS of the arrangements which will be entered into between the roads AND NOT ON ANY THEORIES OR SURMISES OR GUESSES, and they believe that the arrangement will be worked out in an honest and satisfactory manner to the community.

Mr. McNary, it will be observed, didn't want any surmises or guesses about the trick the New Haven had pulled off.

Mr. McNary was quite right about that. It isn't fair to surmise or guess about these things. One wants to be sure of his facts. Here are the facts in the testimony last week at Washington of Timothy E. Byrnes, a vice-president and dough boy of the New Haven, paid William S. McNary $1,000 or $1,500:

Attorney Folk — Did you (Byrnes) express surprise when Mr. McNary made the report to you?

A.—No, I have got over that.

Q.—I thought you said you did not expect him to ask! A.—Expectation and surprise do not necessarily go together. I did not expect it. Finally he said, "I think I SHOULD HAVE SOME MONEY."

Q.—What did you say to that! A.—From the appearance of the vouchers, I said, "You can have it."

Witness Byrnes further testified that when McNary was appointed to the Dock Board by Foss, Mr. McNary dropped in to say that he could, of course, perform no further service for New Haven, and so "would like a settlement."

They settled, and when, several months later, the New Haven needed the help of some opinion-molding for the Grand Trunk conspiracy, which resulted in Mellen's indictment—PORT DIRECTOR William S. McNary, formerly a Grand Trunk "absorber," as Byrnes now describes him, was on hand with an argument going to show that what Morgan had done was going to prove beneficial to Boston.

It is neither surmise nor guess that business men feel that another explanation is about due from William S. McNary.
